Jew, Catholic, Protestant
Self Reliant Rum
Hard to Beat Oil
To Improve Marriage

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

CALVIN COOLIDGE, former Governor Smith and the distinguished philanthropist, Julius Rosenwald, are selected to dispose of an eight million dollar charity fund left by Conrad Hubert.

But why Jew, Protestant, Catholic?

There is too much emphasizing of "Jew, Protestant, Catholic," too much dividing of political offices among them.

That wasn't the idea of the men that established this country.

Government prohibition enforcement made an interesting discovery, capturing a well-organized bootleg fort on the highlands of New Jersey, near the Narrows, where the big rum ships come sailing in.

It was a well-equipped fort, with sawed shotguns, machine guns, pistols, searchlights and radios to direct rum vessels.

The Government believes this one bootleg institution did a business of $1,000,000 a week.

The Government seizure did not disturb bootleg leaders, well entrenched and self-confident. Their chief said to a reporter:

"This is just a little incident. If you want to order a thousand cases of whiskey, I'll deliver it to you in 25 minutes. We'll be doing business as usual in 24 hours, with our men out on bail."

The strike of teamsters against the big oil companies of New York is said to be collapsing. Oil companies say they have won the fight. Many men are returning to work.

It is not easy for organized labor in these days to fight organized capital.

The cost of living is high. It makes no difference to the oil companies whether they take in fifty millions of dollars more or less.

It makes a great difference to a teamster if he takes in fifty dollars a week or nothing.

Great Britain proposes to bar from marriage the "mentally unfit." That might improve the race, if you could identify the mentally unfit with certainty.

Some unfit will be exempt from matrimonial ostracism because they possess large fortunes, or important titles or names.

Others mentally unfit will escape because they are only dull, belonging to the negative class that Dante put into one of hell's most disagreeable compartments.

Viscount Aquilar, physician to King Alfonso of Spain, tells Chicago the King "is in beautiful health because he has never been a man of regular habits."

He means King Alfonso does not confine himself to any particular diet, which is intelligent. Man was made to cultivate the whole earth, and is healthiest when he uses in moderation the greatest number of earth's products, from the north to the south pole.

Charles Fourier said that if a man could read his own palate he would find it to be a correct map of the earth properly cultivated.

The French will go to the naval limitation conference with definite restrictions.

France will not consent to reduction in her cruiser tonnage.

France will not consent to abolition of submarines, or even to the suggestion that they be limited in size to 600 tons. "The defense of France requires 2000 ton submarines. Therefore we shall build them."

The Italians have exactly the same idea, but they don't even take the trouble to state it. A few words from Mussolini will make that clear.

A real heavyweight is coming named Primo Carnera. This prize-fighter measures 6 foot 10 from head to foot and the steamship had to prepare a special berth, longer and wider than usual.

That size is appalling, but David was little and Goliath was beaten.

Solon said to Croesus "Should anyone come having better iron than you he will be master of all your gold."

Similarly the late Tex Rickard would say to Primero Carnera, "Somebody wearing a hat one size larger than yours may make you realize that mere size, below the forehead, is not important."

Observing signs of the unrest that sometimes leads to dangerous riots, the authorities of Joliet prison, in Illinois, immediately took measures "conciliatory and defensive."

Conciliation will do more than defense, for desperate men cannot be kept quiet, as shown re-

PILOT WOOD SHATTERS RECORDS

Arrives Here in Travel Air Plane at 275-Mile-an-Hour Speed

Hurtling through the air at 275 miles an hour, the Travel Air "mystery" plane today flashed across Boston Airport, shattering all records for the trip from New York by flying from Long Island in 52½ minutes.

Piloted by Eric Wood, the bullet-like ship dove across the city, preceded by 30 seconds by the roar of its 300 horsepower motor.

After crossing the finish line with the most tremendous burst of speed ever seen in Boston, Wood put on an exhibition of stunting and set airport pilots and attaches gasping.

DOES STUNTS OVER FIELD

Diving from an elevation of 2500 to 3000 feet, Wood pulled the ship into vertical roll around the field, and then raised the nose slowly rolled upward, finally making a graceful landing.

The plane which cleaned up all the Service speed ships in the free-for-all race at the recent Cleveland national meet, was flown here under the auspices of the East Coast Aircraft Sales Corp., New England distributors for the Travel-Air.

Wood was greeted by Frank Le-Man, sales manager for East Coast, and by other upilots who expressed a keen desire to fly his record-breaking craft.

HAS NEW WINGS

The plane is powered with a Wright Whirlwind J-6 nine-cylinder motor, and is a low wing monoplane covered with ply wood, and with an N. A. C. A. cowling streamlining the motor. The present wings are larger than those used during the Cleveland races, and the super-charger has been taken off, so that the ship's maximum speed on the level is 230 miles an hour, with a cruising speed of 180 miles.

It was flown from the Aviation

Raid Rum Ring Base

120 MORE FIRST NAT'L STORES

The First National Stores, Inc., today announced the acquisition of the Nicholson Thackray chain of 120 stores in Rhode Island.

Before the new chain was added to the larger system, the First National System included 2355 stores.

Hatch Is Arrested

New Orleans, Oct. 18 (AP)—J. Philip Hatch, former wholesale broker of Boston, was arrested today as the steamship Atenas docked from Havana, on a charge of embezzling $120,000 from the Boston branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Rum Ring Banks and Police Face Quiz

New York, Oct. 18—The North Atlantic Syndicate, huge rum ring just broken up in New York, Long Island and New Jersey, paid out bribes totaling as high as $30,000 a week, but nevertheless realized a net profit of at least $2,000,000 in the past six months.

This was revealed today as federal officials continued their search for the ring leaders, some of whom are believed to have fled to Canada.

Two little black books carrying the names of many "right parties" who are declared to have received some of the bribe money may result in prosecution of town and county officials and police heads in a number of New Jersey communities.

This was stated today by William J. Calhoun, prohibition administrator in charge of the raids, conducted simultaneously in the two states.

The two black books were seized in a raid at Highlands, N. J., on the former Oscar Hammerstein estate, occupied by the ring as its headquarters.

$700,000 FOR SHIPS

The ring records showed that the syndicate, which supplied virtually all of the "imported" liquor to New York city and the east, made a profit of $2,000,000 in the last six months. Business was increasing steadily and the big rum firm, which ran booze in on ships from Newfoundland and Bermuda, was preparing to expand.

In March of this year the syndicate paid out $700,000 for "ships, merchandising and operating expenses."

Search for the ringleaders of the syndicate went forward today. Federal officials intimated that the 32 men who were rounded up in the raids were "the smaller fry."

ISHBEL LAUGHS AT ENGAGEMENT

Ottawa, Oct. 18—A London report that Ishbel MacDonald was secretly engaged to Lord Arnold, an "unofficial" member of Premier Ramsay MacDonald's touring party, caused both principals a hearty laugh today.

Whether the humorous reaction was merely to cover the secret could not be learned. Both laughingly parried direct questions regarding the reported understanding.

The London report said Lord Arnold had changed his politics, deserting the Liberals for the Labor party seven years ago when he began to woo the Scotch lassie, and that their engagement would be formally announced in London early in November.

MAY SUSPEND JACK SHARKEY

Providence, Oct. 18 (AP)—Jack Sharkey, a member of the stable of fighters controlled by Johnny Buckley of Boston, may find himself facing suspension by the Rhode Island Athletic Commission and the National Boxing Association because of the actions of his manager. Buckley, manager of Andy Martin, Hub featherweight, created a row following the fight show here last Wednesday that required police interference when Martin lost a decision to Sailor Fay Kosky of Chicago.

The suspension of Buckley, which would also place a ban on all of his fighters, including Sharkey, will be the main topic to come before the meeting of the Rhode Island board next Tuesday, Chairman Edward C. Foster of the state commission intimated today. Foster is also vice-president of the N. B. A., and chairman of the championship committee of that body. He left here this morning for Philadelphia where he will confer with Chairman Weiner of the Pennsylvania commission.

WALSH HINTS PROSECUTION MAY COME IN EXPOSE

Eyanson Links Grundy to Bingham Office: Letters Read at Hearing

Washington, Oct. 18—Startling revelations that the tariff lobby had the leading part in drafting much of the pending tariff bill were made today at the Caraway Senate committee's lobby investigation.

Charles L. Eyanson, employe of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, who was "lent" to Senator Bingham as his "undercover tariff aid," linked Joseph R. Grundy, styled "lobby chief," to Senator Bingham and others in drafting the bill.

Grundy was a frequent caller at Bingham's office, Eyanson said, always in the interest of fixing tariff duties. Grundy deplored the fact he left Senator Bingham's employ, Eyanson testified.

Letters were introduced at today's hearing and the name of Senator McLean of Connecticut was injected.

Eyanson admitted he got salary from the manufacturers' association, from Senator Bingham and from the government, but insisted he was working only for Bingham, although as a government clerk he took a government oath.

WALSH HINTS PROSECUTION

Chairman Caraway said he had no intention of asking for prosecution in connection with any possible violation of law which might be involved through Bingham's employment of Eyanson.

But Senator Walsh (D), Montana, said he thought there was a question of violation of law involved. He added that without passing judgment, he believed the subject would be a matter for committee consideration.

The committee at an executive meeting today considered employment of counsel and investigators, but decision was withheld.

"LOBBY LETTER" READ

"I want you to prepare the way for me with Senator Bingham regarding your tenure of office in Washington. You have done a great deal more than ever bargained for in the beginning and undoubtedly the results which you have accomplished are far-reaching and will bear fruit for some time to come.

"At all events, in the past, the association when any tariff matter came up was always dependent upon Senator McLean. Now we are in a position where we can handle it here in the office.

"Please help me carry out this program, for there is no question in my mind but that you could find forever a permanent lot of responsibility and useful activity for the rest of your life in Washington.

"I would be glad if you would show this letter to Mrs. Eyanson and ask her to help me make you perform in the manner indicated."

Bingham during his savage exchanges with committee members had testified Eyanson had been lent to him by the association because he desired assistance on the tariff needs of Connecticut and today Walsh persisted in asking Eyanson what results the letter referred to.

Finally Eyanson said he was not certain of the meaning of Hubbard's communication and again suggested Hubbard be called.

Walsh suggested that perhaps the "results" spoken of were those in the House tariff bill.

Eyanson said he did not think so, explaining all he did before the House ways and means commit-

Doheny Weeps in Tale of 'Loan' to Fall

Washington, Oct. 18—Edward L. Doheny, oil magnate, wept on the witness stand today during the trial of his old friend, Albert B. Fall, whom he is accused of giving a bribe of $100,000.

The oil man, who knew Fall in the West when both were young, showed signs of emotion as he said emphatically that the $100,000 he gave to Fall was simply a loan. He was in tears and his voice shook as he told of conversations with Rear Admiral J. K. Robison, who represented the Navy during the oil leases.

He said he never discussed the clause of the Elk Hills-Pearl Harbor contract, which gave his company preference to any lands that the Government might subsequently decide to lease.

"Preferential rights had no meaning to me and never has had," he added.

JAPAN WAS FEARED.

Doheny told the jury he informed Admiral Robison that he was not interested in the Pearl Harbor contract, adding he consented to bid only after Robison appealed to his patriotism. The naval officer was quoted as saying establishment of the Pearl Harbor oil base would do away "with the menace in the East."

The menace referred to, Doheny testified, was Japan.

SMITH NOT OUT OR IN '32 RACE

The Democratic presidential nomination in 1932 is not a closed book to Alfred E. Smith.

"Governor," he was asked, "is it true that you will seek to enter the Senate in 1934?"

Mr. Smith declined to answer the question for the record.

"Have you determined not to run for President again?"

Mr. Smith did answer that question and this is what he said:

"A man never gets anywhere or accomplishes much if he makes his plans too far in advance. I have never made definite plans for the future. I have never gone about it that way. What I have done has sort of come my way.

"I have never determined matters long in advance. You cannot tell what is going to happen in the future, what may occur in between times. And to count on what you will do at some distant time is, to me, silly."

Man Killed When Buried in Cavein

Providence, Oct. 18—Buried under several tons of earth when a loam bank caved in on him, Carlo DeSano, 62, a laborer, was smothered to death today while working in the rear of the Homeopathic hospital building. Two fellow workers, William Waters and Albert Anderson, worked frantically to dig DeSano out.

Heart Strain Kills Young Grid Player

Troy, N. Y., Oct. 18 (INS)—Harold Weisberg, 18, of the Troy High School eleven, died today of a heart ailment which doctors said was caused by over exertion in a game last Saturday.

More Divorces, Speed Up; Declares Darrow

London, Oct. 18 (INS)—The American divorce mill does not grind fast enough for Clarence S. Darrow, the noted American criminal lawyer. Many European countries have America "licked to death" in the matter of easy and rapid divorce, in his opinion.

"They are not divorcing fast enough," he said. "They should divorce them faster, because there are so many unhappy marriages. That is true all over the world. It is a puritan idea that human beings be kept in unhappiness so that they may be happy in heaven."

The growing independence of women and the more liberal attitude toward life is causing the increase in divorce cases in Darrow's opinion. The courts should help out by granting easier and faster divorces, he believes.

"As for America," he said, "it is almost the worst of the lot. Why, a lot of countries have us licked to death on divorce nowadays—France, Scandinavia, Russia and Mexico, for example.

"A man gets tired of anything after 25 years. For instance, how many friends have you now that you had 25 years ago?

"There is hardly anything I care for today that I did 25 years ago. So it is not only possible, but absolutely certain that matrimonial couples may change in their ideas. Certainly the best thing for them to do is to separate."

LOBBY'S ACTIVITIES FOR TARIFF BILL MAY MEAN PROSECUTION

LINK GRUNDY TO BINGHAM IN HEARING

Eyanson Admits He Took Government Oath, but Held Three Jobs

tee was to assist the Connecticut manufacturers in the preparation of briefs.

GRUNDY A CALLER

Reading a telegram from Eyanson to Hubbard stating "hearings closed, recess until Monday, engaged in rush publicity job," Eyanson said he was not certain what the publicity was, explaining it might have been the preparation of a statement for Senator Bingham.

A letter from Hubbard to Eyanson dated July 25 was read to the committee. In part it said: "I doubt if any one else could have been put in the same position and as quickly and effectively made good."

Eyanson said it referred to his supplying information to Senator Bingham. The witness added that Joseph R. Grundy, representative of the American Tariff League, called at the Bingham office "six or seven times."

"What did he want?" he was asked.

"Just as hundreds of others, he called to urge a raising or lowering of rates," replied Eyanson. "I [illegible] to see Senator Bingham, but he was referred to me."

Asked if he had known Grundy previously, the witness said he had not. "But I suppose every one knows through the papers of the splendid work Mr. Grundy has done on the tariff," he continued.

Walsh then referred to a newspaper [illegible] quoting Eyanson as stating: "Joe just called me to Washington."

WORKED FOR GRUNDY

"I never called Mr. Grundy Joe," explained Eyanson. "He did call me [illegible] to Washington. I did leave. Then he deplored the fact that I had left Senator Bingham and urged that I return to Washington."

Walsh wanted to know "what was the particular work Mr. Grundy wanted to have you do down there?"

"I suppose to resume my work with Senator Bingham and supply him information."

Grundy, who has been called by the committee, was at today's hearing.

Another letter to Eyanson was produced. It said: "Senator Montgomery is leaving on the Federal and will call upon you in Senator Bingham's office."

Eyanson said Montgomery came to Washington to urge an increase in the tariff on material used in making Christmas tree trimmings and he believed the rate had been reduced.

Senator Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, read from the record showing that Eyanson was appointed by Senator Bingham as clerk of the Committee on Territories and Insular Possessions. He read the oath taken by Eyanson upon going on the Government payroll.

Eyanson said he turned over the $[illegible] he received as the regular clerk of the committee, whom he displaced.

WORKED FOR ALL THREE

"Didn't you think you were entitled to the Government money?"

"I might well have been entitled to it, but I was being paid by the Connecticut Manufacturers Association."

"You weren't, then, working for the Government and you couldn't serve two masters?" asked Blaine.

"That's right." The witness said he was not sure whether he would cash the [illegible] check received from Senator Bingham.

"What would you do?" he asked Blaine.

"Were you working for Senator Bingham?"

"Yes."

"I can't advise you. You seemed to be working for three parties—the government, Senator Bingham and the Connecticut Manufacturers Association. If you will unscramble that I will try to help you."

"I really was working for Senator Bingham," said Eyanson.

"Why did you accept the salary from the association?" persisted Blaine.

"Well, I was on salary for the association and it has paid me before when I was away," the witness answered.

A PAYROLL SECRET

"But you signed the payroll as clerk of the Senate committee on territories and insular affairs?" Blaine protested.

"I thought I was acting as secretary to Senator Bingham," Eyanson said. "I'm inclined to say I received it as clerk of the committee."

Senator Caraway asked Eyanson whether his association knew he was on the government payroll.

"No," said Eyanson. "If I had kept the money, I would have told them."

Walsh read from the minutes of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association where approval was given to sending a "representative" to Bingham to help "protect" Connecticut industries in the tariff bill.

"Who was the representative?" asked the Senator.

"I presume myself," Eyanson replied.

"Who was he to represent?"

"He was to be a representative of the association until such time as he reported to Senator Bingham."

"That qualification is not in the record," observed Walsh.

"No, that's my qualification. I wanted to express the view of the association."

"Oh, yes."

SAYS LAW VIOLATED

It was contended today that by employing Eyanson Senator Bingham violated the law.

Under Bingham's interpretation of the statutes, they affect only employes of the executive branch of the government, but Walsh contends that by going back to the original law on the subject, he has found that it relates to all government employes.

A government employe is prohibited, he said, from accepting outside pay for work relating to his government duties, but also from paying a private individual for government work.

Chairman Caraway of the committee has announced that he had no intention of proceeding any farther with the Bingham case than a full explanation of the affair.

Then the committee adjourned until Monday.

Rum Ring Paid Bribes of $30,000 Weekly radio station the syndicate had put up at Highlands for sending of code messages to its rum fleet, was released in $30,000 bail.

The federal authorities were seeking, among others, the Lillien brothers, Bill and Al, who are under federal indictment but eluded apprehension. They are believed to be in Montreal.

None of the names of the bribe-takers in the books were as yet known because the names are not given in full. The notations were made in this manner: "To Jim $1000"; "To Harry $1900"; "To Joe [illegible]" and so on.

BANKS TO BE QUIZZED.

Several of the notations indicated the percentage of dividend profits or claimed division profit being paid out to the recipient.

According to Administrator Calhoun, seven banks in New Jersey, Manhattan and Brooklyn in which the ring did business will be called upon to produce their records of the transactions.

At the same time Asst. U. S. Atty. James L. Wilkinson declared that the three New Jersey banks involved, one of them a prominent bank in Newark, were obviously aware of the nature of their rum clients' business.

Atty. Wilkinson also denounced attorneys who, he said, gave legal advice to the rum ring heads.

"When banks lend their palatial offices as a rendezvous for bootleggers," he said, "and finance bootlegging operations with accounts carried in code to prevent their identification, and when supposedly respectable lawyers sit in at bootleggers' conferences in their own offices, I consider it about time for the public to begin to consider a new code of ethics for the business world.

LINKED WITH CAPONE.

"This is not a question of prohibition enforcement. It is a matter of financing all kinds of crime by banks thus misusing their depositors' money. It is no secret that this mob of bootleggers is more or less hooked up with the gang of Scarface Al Capone."

William Lillien's presence in Montreal was revealed during the raid on the New Jersey mansion by a telephone call from there which was answered by U. S. Marshal James J. Donnelly. Lillien was quoted as inquiring about work on a garage before he became suspicious and hung up.

Prohibition officials revealed that an agent had been "planted" in the ranks of the syndicate for the past six months and had gained the confidence of the leaders sufficiently to be made a lieutenant.

The motorship Shawnee, which was fired upon by a coast guard cutter Sept. 11, is described in the indictment as the vessel from which speed boats operated by the syndicate unloaded 1400 cases of whiskey, 750 cases of champagne and 200 cases of gin off Navesink Light last August.

CANADA TAKES HAND

She was supposed to have been the ship to which a federal officer sent decoy messages from the smugglers' radio station after the raid Wednesday and when a fleet of coast guard craft was sent out under sealed orders to locate and capture.

The incident of the firing in which several shells were said by the captain to have struck the Shawnee, has been made the subject of diplomatic correspondence between the United States and Canada.

Dry agents, at the syndicate's headquarters at Highlands, are searching the "fortress" and its environs for more liquor. They already have $1,000,000 worth of rare liquors in their possession. Search was also being made at points along the Atlantic coast line for secret landing places for the rum fleet.

Coast guard officials reported, however, that three vessels seized during the last two months were the property of the syndicate.

Demands Probe Quiz in T.A.T. Death Crash

Washington, Oct. 18 (INS)—A move to force the Department of Commerce to make public its investigation into the crash of the T. A. T. transport plane in New Mexico on September 3, in which eight persons were killed, was made in the Senate today by Senator McKellar (Dem.) of Tennessee.

He coupled this with a demand for reports of another fatal crash in Memphis. The commerce committee will hold a hearing next week.

2900 Killed by Autos in August

Hartford, Oct. 18 (INS)—Automobile fatalities in the United States reached a higher peak during August, 1929 than in any previous month in history, according to a report of the Travelers Insurance Company.

The report shows approximately 2900 persons killed during August, a 23 per cent increase over August of last year and an 8 per cent increase over July of this year.

Flier Photographs Mt. Rainier at 227 Miles

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 18 (INS)—An aerial photograph of Mt. Rainier was made from 227 miles away this summer by Capt. A. W. Stevens of the army air corps.

Mt. Rainier is in the State of Washington. The picture was taken from south of the center of Oregon.

The 227-mile picture was made in an aeroplane flying at an altitude of nearly 17,000 feet.

In the picture Mt. Rainier appears lower, because of the earth's curvature, than nearer mountains with less height.

Capt. Stevens' success was revealed when he came to Rochester this week to discuss with scientists of the Eastman Kodak Co., the Folmer Graflex Corporation and the Bausch & Lomb Optical Company various technical findings in connection with the experiment.

Capt. Stevens is head of the photographic branch of the air corps at Wright Field, Dayton, O. His pilot was Lieut. John Corkille, also of Wright Field.

The War Department authorized the expedition.

A. F. L. IN WARM DEBATE ON USE OF INJUNCTION

Boston Chosen for Convention in 1930; Green Is Re-Elected

[illegible], Oct. 18. With Boston chosen for the 1930 convention, the American Federation of Labor in session here today resumed a heated debate on proposals to seek legislation that will remove the use of injunctions in industrial strife.

The selection of Boston for next year's convention will bring the Federation to that city for the first time in more than 25 years, it was said.

William Green, accepting re-election for a sixth year as president, promised to "give my best thought" and said: "I don't know whether I can keep up the pace set in the last five years since Samuel Gompers died."

Frank Morrison, veteran secretary, was given an ovation upon his uncontested victory and Martin F. Ryan of Kansas City, treasurer, was renamed with similar enthusiasm.

The list of re-elected vice presidents included Frank Duffy, Indianapolis; T. A. Rickert, Chicago; Matthew Woll, Chicago; James Wilson, Cincinnati; James P. Noonan, Washington; Arthur D. Wharton, Washington, and Joseph Weber, New York City.

To carry forward the long fight of trades unions against court injunctions in labor disputes, the resolutions committee proposed that the executive council be authorized to present to Congress "a measure having for its purpose the amending or repealing of the Sherman, Clayton, or like restrictive laws, or parts thereof."

It declared necessary the enactment of another measure "to prevent the misuse of restraining orders and injunctions in labor disputes," and brought in the text of such a bill.

Andrew Furuseth, president of the Seamen's Union, said the proposed bill would arm the equity courts with more power to restrict union action and added that the Supreme Court would declare such an act unconstitutional in the very section labor would most desire.

DOHENY WEEPS DEFENDING FALL

in the West, when men were men and braved death in quest of gold and oil, prefaced Doheny's explanation of the transaction which the government contends was a bribe.

Under guidance of Frank J. Hogan, chief defense attorney, the pink-faced, white-haired oil baron told how he and Fall prospected together 43 years ago and struck up a friendship that has come down through the years.

MRS. DOHENY ON STAND.

It was this friendship that prompted the man whose millions run into several score to make an unsecured loan of a mere $100,000, he told the jury.

Preceding him on the stand had been his wife, who attested to the same story of the $100,000 transaction. Mrs. Doheny had explained the signature had been torn from the note Fall gave for the money simply as a precaution to save the aged defendant from the possible embarrassment of premature foreclosure should she and her husband be killed simultaneously in a railroad accident.

Wearing a black dress, trimmed in white, she said her husband had told her to keep the signature carefully so it would be available when time came to present the note for payment.

PRODUCES SIGNATURES

She added she had taken the signature from New York to Los Angeles and put it in a safe deposit box. Today Mrs. Doheny produced the signature in court. She already had identified the note. Frank Hogan, chief defense counsel, put them together and presented the complete note to the jury, which examined it carefully.

She was on the stand only a short while before her husband was called.

Doheny said he had nothing to do with President Harding's transfer of the naval oil reserves to the jurisdiction of the Interior Department, but told of receiving a letter from Fall in 1921 in which the latter asked him to get the Pan-American Company to relinquish rights to part of Elk Hills. He said he replied his company would be glad to do anything to help the government.

Fall later told him, the oil man said, of his desire to purchase an addition to his ranch property and spoke of trying to borrow $100,000 from Edward M. McLean, Washington publisher. Doheny said he offered to let Fall have the money, but the cabinet member did not immediately accept the offer, but asserted if he did he would give Doheny a mortgage on the ranch property.

ASKED FOR CASH

On November 29, 1922, Fall telephoned him asking for the loan. Fall, he said, explained the difficulty of handling checks in New Mexico and asked for cash. Doheny sent the next day by his son.

When the son returned he gave the witness Fall's note, which did not contain the rate of interest, his son saying Fall had left it blank, as he thought Doheny should set the rate.

Rockport Imperilled by Incendiary Blaze

Rockport, Oct. 18—A sudden shift of wind saved the village of Pigeon Cove, three miles from the town's center, from destruction today, when flames, started by a firebug, police believe, destroyed four buildings on Granite st., the main artery.

The Rockport fire department, aided by 50 volunteers, worked for two hours before the flames were under control.

When it seemed that the business center was doomed, because of flying embers, the wind suddenly veered to the east, removing further danger.

Damage to the burned structures was estimated at about $12,000.

The buildings were occupied by the H. Chester Storey Gift Shop, the Fred Parsons Gift Shop, the Cape Ann Tool Company, general store and the fourth, a barn, by Edward Bailey, for storage of lumber.

George Storey, brother of H. Chester Storey, discovered the fire. He was awakened in his house, across the street by crackling of flames. The Parsons shop was ablaze. The Parsons shop was ablaze. Even as he hastily dressed and sent in an alarm, the Storey shop and general store took flame. In a few moments the Bailey barn was one big torch.

A dozen families living in the immediate vicinity, were routed out of bed by the ringing of fire bells and they made hurried preparations to leave their homes.

Meanwhile Storey plunged into his brother's shop together with his wife, and they managed to save a few articles of value before they were driven out by the blaze.

While firemen were devoting attention to the burning buildings, half a hundred volunteers, with hand extinguishers and garden hose, mounted nearby housetops to fight small roof blazes.

At the early stages of the blaze the wind was carrying these embers over other business houses and residences. Women aided the men in protecting their homes.

A survey of the blaze convinced local police that it was the work of an incendiary. In the past two years this section has been visited by a dozen "set" fires, all of which broke out in the early morning hours and gained considerable headway before being discovered.

Big Searchlight to Seek Attacking Plane

Monday night Boston will see a sight, seldom witnessed except in war time. One of the biggest searchlights the army owns will be in Copley sq. playing a 43,000,000 candle-power beam through the skies in search of attacking airplanes. The National Guard will put one of the fast Curtiss Falcon planes in the air and by various intricate maneuvers will attempt to prevent the beam from fastening upon it.

BRIAND AGREES TO NEGOTIATE WITH ITALY

Confident of Evading Blame for Failure of London Arms Parley

Paris, Oct. 18 (AP)—Premier Briand of France has agreed to an Italian suggestion for an exchange of views between Italy and France, previous to the five-power naval conference, which probably will be held in London early next year.

The counselor of the Italian embassy visited the French foreign office and suggested an exchange of views. At the same time he deposited a memorandum outlining the Italian suggestion.

Before formally accepting the British invitation France announced that she would be willing to have conversations with all the participants in the proposed conference, and in line with this Premier Briand has assented to the Italian request.

The French press today was beginning to warn the government against what it viewed as the danger of others putting the onus on France for any possible failure of the London parley. The government, however, is represented as confident that its views on outstanding questions are so clear and well known that this danger is largely imaginary.

Among the outstanding questions are naval parity, which Italy wants and France may not agree to, distribution of tonnage among categories of warships and the principle of interdependence of all branches of armaments, the French contention being naval disarmament cannot be separated from limitation of land and air forces.

Japan Backs Hoover's Drive to Cut All Navies

Washington, Oct. 18 (INS)—Japan hopes that there will be not only limitation of armament at the forthcoming London naval conference, but actual reduction of existing navies, as well.

This sentiment was expressed in the Japanese reply to the British invitation to the conference. The reply was made public here today.

It was a source of satisfaction to administration officials that Japan went out of her way to express approbation of the very point which President Hoover has so stressed in his utterances concerning the conference—that the powers should not only endeavor to arrive at limitation, but to effect actual reduction. None of the other invited powers have gone so far in their official replies.

Tokio, Oct. 18—Baron Shidehara, Japanese Foreign Minister, amplifying the Japanese attitude in connection with acceptance of the London naval parley invitation stressed Tokio's "willingness" to carry on informal preliminary discussions with Washington, or any other government, prior to the conference.

MacDonald to Negotiate With Fance, Italy and Japan

Ottawa, Oct. 18 (AP)—Conversations with France, Italy and Japan in the same informal manner which characterized his talks with President Hoover will be Premier Ramsay MacDonald's next step in his crusade for world peace.

He disclosed this in an address before the political leaders of the Dominion at a dinner in Parliament building.

Describing his mission to the United States as merely one of good will, with no intention of entering into any agreements, he pointed out there is a world outside the United States and Great Britain and that neither country desired to impose its will on the world outside.

He said pessimistic friends advised against the calling of the five-power naval limitation conference, saying all nations would not accept the invitation.

"But," he added, "I was never pessimistic and I am glad to say that every power that was requested to send representatives there has now replied that it will be happy to be represented. And so the next stage in this dream is the five-power conference, and I go back to London to begin conversations with France, with Italy, with Japan, in the same frank and free and open way that has characterized the conversations between the United States and ourselves."

Agents Have Say on Football Liquor

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP)—Investigation of liquor drinking at college football games this fall will be left to the decision of the local prohibition administrators under a ruling today by Assistant Secretary Lowman of the Treasury, in charge of dry law enforcement.

He said as yet no concerted drive by the federal authorities against drinking at the games was contemplated. Local prohibition administrators, however, he added, will have authority to take whatever action they deem advisable.

Six Armed Bandits Loot Bank of $50,000

Peru, Ind., Oct. 18 (INS)—Six bandits descended today on the First National Bank in the heart of the city, looted the bank of more than $50,000, shot volleys in the street, wounded a pedestrian and escaped in a big automobile.

INDUSTRIAL SUPPORT IS SOUGHT

Ten Reasons Advanced for Preventing Control by Trunk Lines

Support of the plan for an all New England railroad system was solicited from industrial and business associations today by the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

The chamber is championing the cause of an all New England rail merger and will oppose, before the Interstate Commerce Commission, two petitions of the Wabash Railway Co. and the Delaware & Hudson Co. for a consolidation involving New England roads.

Entirely separate from these petitions is the reported heavy buying of stock in New England systems by outside trunk lines other than the petitioners.

APPEAL FOR SUPPORT

The chamber's appeal for support of the all New England idea and for organized opposition to the encroachment of outside interests, which the chamber holds would be detrimental to New England industry, was made in a letter sent out by Secretary Melville D. Liming.

"These proposals (for consolidation with outside lines, said the letter) are in conflict with the overwhelming sentiment in favor of an all New England system developed at public hearings held by the Interstate Commerce Commission in Boston in 1923, and convince this organization that the time has arrived for united action on the part of all business organizations interested in New England's transportation future."

GAVE TEN REASONS

Ten reasons why an all New England rail system would be for the best interests of the community were advanced by Eugene C. Hultman, chairman of the chamber committee on transportation.

The greatest possible degree of transportation accessibility can be gained by a consolidation of New England's existing railroads, excepting the Boston & Albany and the United States portions of Canadian lines, rather than ally them with trunk lines, he pointed out.

"The community of interest which prevails between the New England railroads and the New England shipping public would be subordinated to the selfish interest of trunk lines if New England were subjected to absentee management," he said.

New England Is "Not Separate Nation"

Concord, N. H., Oct. 18 (AP)—New England should "get over the idea that it is a separate country from the rest of the states," John W. Storrs, chairman of the New Hampshire Public Service Commission, said today in commenting on the conference of New England Governors in Boston yesterday, when the possibility of a unified New England railroad system was discussed.

"New England," said Chairman Storrs, "is constantly asking favors, of which rate differentials is one striking example. Consolidation of a lot of weaker railroads would not in my personal opinion be as advantageous to New England as a consolidation of the New England roads with one or more of the stronger systems and at the same time preserve competition."

Nominating Boards Announced at B. U.

Students who will pick the candidates for senior, sophomore and freshman class offices at Boston University's college of liberal arts have been announced. Chairmen for the three classes are Donald Oliver of Portland, Me., seniors; W. Dickenson of Newtonville, sophomores, and Clifford Foote of Lynn, freshmen.

Senior nomination committee members are Joseph Needham of Brookline, Mary Cleary of Boston, Mary Ryerson of Boston and Rosamond Harmon of Lawrence; sophomores are Fannie Bach of New Canaan, Conn.; Mary Norris of Quincy and Roger Sharpless of Melrose. Freshmen are Wilbur Irving of Somerville, Audrey Wood of Methuen, Jane Brooks of Milton and Louise Rafferty of New London, Conn.

'Whoopee' in Divorce

One terrific sock from Jack Dempsey's fist not only laid Joe Benjamin low in New York a few months ago, but its echo has wrecked the romance of Hazel Forbes, a glorified blonde in Ziegfeld's "Whoopee." She has sued her husband of nine months, Edward Judson, for divorce. She was on the "whoopee" party when Dempsey loosed his left, but her husband wasn't there. Hence the row. T. N. T. IN AUTO COLLISION

Freehold, N. J., Oct. 18 (AP)—Abraham Jameson, of Morganville, 32 years old and the father of eight children, died during the night at Freehold Hospital, of injuries received in a collision with his car, a dynamite carrier.

The fifty pounds of T. N. T. and box of dynamite caps, which police found in the car after the accident, did not explode.

The four other passengers in the machines were injured. Two, Charles Brady, of Morganville, and Charles C. Clark, East Orange, were released from the Freehold Hospital today.

200 U. S. Rotary Boys to Visit Denmark

Denver, Oct. 18 (AP)—Two hundred American high school and college boys will be selected from among sons of Rotarians to visit Europe next summer and be entertained in the homes of estate owners and families of nobility in Denmark.

Dr. Sven Y. Nnudsen of Denmark made the announcement here at a hearing of the Rotary Club of Denver.

Dreiser Mentioned for Nobel Prize

Stockholm, Oct. 18 (AP)—Among those mentioned in literary circles as a probable recipient of a Nobel prize this year is Theodore Dreiser, American novelist. The prize this year will be worth $46,192.

$100,000,000 Is Spent on Ohio River Canal

Pittsburgh, Oct. 18 (AP)—A river pageant today will close Pittsburgh's celebration of the canalization of the Ohio river, a project which links this industrial center with the seven seas.

The celebration opened with a banquet, in which five members of President Hoover's cabinet, seven railroad executives and other luminaries hailed the completion of the nine-foot channel, the $100,000,000 project stretching from the historic point here to Cairo, Ill., where the Ohio joins the Mississippi.

James Francis Burke, in the keynote address, suggested creation of an American council of transportation, headed by the great leaders at this table.

W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, approved the suggestion. Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of War James W. Good, Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont, P. E. Crowley, president of the New York Central railroad, and Gov. John S. Fisher were among the principal speakers.

The cabinet members here, in addition to Secretaries Mellon, Lamont and Good, were Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis.

SUIT FOLLOWS DEMPSEY BLOW

New York, Oct. 18 (INS)—Hazel Forbes, that little blonde knockout in Ziegfeld's "Whoopee," over whose smile Jack Dempsey struck Joe Benjamin, sued her husband of only nine months for divorce today. And the Manassa Mauler's sock, Broadway reports, is to blame.

It seems, according to rumors, that Hazel had much explaining to do when she tripped home that evening and tried to laugh it off with her hubby, Edward Judson, salesman of de luxe automobiles. He couldn't understand it at all.

What was she, a bride of only five months, doing in a Fifth ave. hotel suite instead of being home by the fireside with him, Judson wished to know. Her tearful explanation that her girl friends, Agnes McLaughlin and Geraldine Rogers, also of "Whoopee," were present, didn't seem to help matters.

It was enough for Judson to hear that Dempsey had slipped Benjamin one on the button because Hazel might have smiled at him once or twice. There was one of those spats and Hazel, it is reported, sobbed home to mother.

$7000 Lowell Fire Is Fanned by Wind

Lowell, Oct. 18—Fanned by a brisk wind a two-alarm fire today swept through a wood yard in the center of the tenement district, badly damaged one dwelling, burned one side of three tenement blocks and for a time threatened to sweep the entire terrain.

The fire started in John Narleceskwa's wood yard at Lakeview and Broughton aves. and quickly spread to the cottage and then to surrounding tenement blocks. Fast work by firemen halted the flames and kept the total damage down to $7000.

Gets Two Years in Store Burglaries

Charles McDonald, convicted of breaking and entering two stores in Salem, was sentenced to two years in the House of Correction by Judge Patrick M. Keating in Salem District Court.

McDonald, with Albert Noury, Francis H. Blodgett and Porter H. Peabody, were convicted of a string of breaks. The other three implicated will come up for sentence at a later date. The group was captured at Topsfield by the state police.

AMERICANS IN CHINA FLEE MUTINY

Troops Revolt 50 Miles From Nanking; Foreigners Taken Off by Warship

Shanghai, Oct. 18 (AP)—Advices from the city of Wuhu, in the province of Anhwei, today indicated that Nationalist government troops had mutinied there today but were driven from the city.

It was authoritatively learned that all foreigners, including about [illegible] Americans, left the city and went aboard the Japanese and British gunboats. The foreigners included 70 Japanese and 50 other nationalities.

Authentic accounts indicated the trouble started when the Nationalist government attempted to disarm troops belonging to Feng Chenwu, chairman of the Anhwei government. Feng has been dismissed by Nanking because of his doubtful allegiance. Feng's troops also were reported to have attempted to extort [illegible] Mexican from the residents of Wuhu, which was refused.

The troops opened fire on the city and carried out looting to an extent not yet determined. Loyal Nationalist forces attacked the revolters and after a day of fighting drove them from the city.

Wuhu is only 50 miles from Nanking, and it is understood the Nanking government rushed additional forces by motor trucks.

The British authorities have ordered H.M.S. Ladybird to Wuhu from Kiukiang and H.M.S. Gnat from Nanking.

Fighting Renewed on Amur-Sungari Rivers

Tokyo, Oct. 18 (AP)—Further fighting between Chinese and Soviet troops near the junction of the Sungari and Amur rivers was reported in dispatches from Harbin today.

Civil War Battle Near in Honan

Hankow, China, Oct. 18 (AP)—The hostile forces of the nationalist government of the Kuominchun or "People's Army," led by generals of Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang, have completed their concentration in the northwest part of Honan Province and the stage is set for the beginning of fighting.

Every available nationalist soldier has been sent northward from Hankow. A number of airplanes accompanied the troops.

CHIVALRY WINS POINT FOR GIRL SUING THAW

Defence Witness Admits Double Meaning in Testimony Against Her

New York, Oct. 18 (INS)—Marcia Estardus, [illegible] $100,000 damages from Harry K. Thaw for an alleged beating and biting suffered on New Year's day of 1927 [illegible] certain of success.

Morgan Pendleton, [illegible] Virginia family, who was formerly Thaw's private secretary and who has been regarded as the defense's principal witness, was tripped up today as a result of his high regard for traditional Southern chivalry.

Yesterday Pendleton testified that on the day the attack is alleged to have taken place, Miss Estardus was alone with him in Thaw's apartment.

Today, Samuel Siegel, Miss Estardus' representative, asked him point blank what he meant to infer.

But Justice [illegible], who is presiding, asked:

"Wasn't it your intention to infer something?"

Stammering and shifting uneasily in his chair, Pendleton replied, "I didn't exactly want to infer anything. I wanted to leave some doubt in the minds of the jury."

"You're a southern gentleman, aren't you?" the justice asked.

Previously Pendleton testified that he had visited Thaw's apartment with Miss Estardus on January 3. This contradicted Miss Estardus' testimony that she had been unable to leave her home for ten days after New Year's day.

Edmund Warner, also a former secretary of Thaw's, testified that he called at Thaw's apartment late in the afternoon of New Year's day and found the plaintiff attired in pajamas. He said he saw no signs of conflict or assault.

Warner said Pendleton and Miss Estardus had visited the Thaw apartment together after the alleged assault took place.

Noisy Rivet Hammer Going Into Discard

Philadelphia, Oct. 18 (AP)—The millennium approaches for city dwellers who have to sleep daytimes. The noisy pneumatic hammer used in riveting steel in buildings is being replaced by a noiseless hydrogen blowpipe welder, says Dr. Irving Langmuir, research expert of the General Electric Company.

Plan Use of Pontoons to Free Yacht

Barnstable, Oct. 18—Still hard and fast on the outside beach of Sandy Neck, the $75,000 schooner yacht Shearwater, which was driven ashore yesterday, was in danger of breaking up today. Her crew of four had been taken off and seas rolling before a northwest wind were crashing over her stern. Her bow rests in about four feet of sand, and if the wind should swing to the north or northeast there will be no hope of pulling her off, coast guardsmen said.

No effort to pull her free will be made today. On the 10-foot tide tomorrow a tug will make the attempt and pontoons may be used to lift her from the sand.

Charles E. Dunlop of New York, a millionaire with holdings in Virginia coal mines and Boston-Norfolk coastwise transportation lines, is the owner of the yacht. He was not aboard when she went aground.

WAGGONER TO CHANGE PLEA

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—Attorneys for C. D. Waggoner, Telluride, Col., banker, who pleaded guilty in Federal Court to charges of mail fraud in connection with the scheme by which he mulcted New York banks of $500,000, announced today they were preparing a motion to change his plea to not guilty.

Waggoner is already under sentence of 15 years in Atlanta Penitentiary.

The motion, which is unusual in legal procedure, will be made before Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman today, Allan R. Campbell, of Waggoner's counsel, said.

Waggoner's plea of guilty when he was called to trial Oct. 10 was entirely unexpected, as his attorneys had indicated they would fight the case, probably on the grounds of insanity.

Mr. Campbell did not indicate what had caused the new move.

The motion, unusual in legal procedure, was made before Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman. The court reserved decision on another motion introduced by Waggoner's attorney, Elwood M. Rabenold, that the banker's maximum sentence of 15 years be reduced.

Judge Coleman said that if he does reduce the maximum sentence, he still will urge that the banker be held in prison for at least five years.

BRITISH FLIERS 'SHOW' TURKS

Constantinople, Oct. 18 (AP)—Aeronautical exhibitions performed over Constantinople by 36 airplanes of the British Navy have brought into prominence the rivalry which exists between England, Germany and the United States for supplying airplanes to the Turkish air force. The government of Mustapha Kemal is bending every effort to make the air force the most powerful in the Balkans.

The Turkish crowds cheered the British aviators, and Turkish aviators took part in the demonstration flights and stunt performances over the city.

Officer Awaits Arrival of Hatch

Atty.-Gen. Warner has received a telegram from Secretary of State Stimson, saying that J. Philip Hatch, wanted in Boston for the alleged larceny of $120,000 from the Bank of Nova Scotia, will arrive at New Orleans today aboard the steamer Atenas, from Havana.

Inspector Liese of the bureau of criminal investigation, Boston police department, is waiting at New Orleans for the arrival of the steamer, and expects to bring Hatch back to Massachusetts.

Devereaux Folk Oppose Hotel

Prominent citizens of the Devereaux section of Marblehead, aroused by reports that the old Devereaux mansion is to become a hotel, have petitioned the selectmen of the town to withhold issuance of an innholder's license until after a public hearing.

The property, comprising 25 acres and the old mansion, was recently offered to the town for a hospital. The offer was rejected. Sixty-one residents of the town's most exclusive section, surrounding the mansion premises, signed the petition. The property is zoned for business purposes, and under the zoning laws may be used for any type of industry.

Voice Across the Sea Thrills Daughter, 5

Worcester, Oct. 18—"Ting-a-ling" went the telephone bell many times repeated in the home of Col. and Mrs. Slater Washburn in 42 Elm st.

It finally aroused the occupants and Central called for Miss Beulah Washburn, one of the [illegible] daughters of the couple. She pattered down the stairs from her chamber and her little "hello" was answered by the voice of daddy coming clear across the Atlantic Ocean from Paris, where the colonel and Mrs. Washburn are with the American Legion excursionists.

Beulah was surprised and thrilled as never before and so were her smaller sisters and brother—Caroline, Anne Marie and Charles Grenfell—when they heard her talking with daddy and mamma. They, too, pattered down the stairs and they also talked to daddy and mamma across the ocean in Paris. They were told the travelers are well, and after imparting some of their own childish confidences, returned to their beds.

WOMAN FACES JAIL FOR AID TO PANTAGES

Los Angeles, Oct. 18—A prosecutor's threat of grand jury action hung over another defense witness in the Alexander Pantages case today as the multi-millionaire theater man continued to fight the charge that he attacked Eunice Pringle, 17.

Dist. Atty. Fitts intimated the grand jury may review testimony given by Mrs. Floy Biffle partly corroborating the sworn statements of her husband, Garland Biffle, who was indicted on a perjury charge Wednesday after giving evidence considered favorable to Pantages. After undergoing a searching cross-examination, Mrs. Biffle broke down and implored court officials not to take her to jail.

"They arrested my husband. Are they going to arrest me?" She cried. "I don't want to go to jail."

Fitts said no immediate action would be taken against her but indicated her case might be put before the grand jury.

Biffle was indicted after he testified he saw Miss Pringle and Nicholas Duneav, author of her vaudeville skit, enter the Pantages Theater Building on the day of the alleged attack.

In spite of her husband's arrest, Mrs. Biffle testified she also saw Duneav and the girl in the theater building.

Under cross-examination Mrs. Biffle admitted she had talked the case over with her husband, both before and after his appearance on the stand.

Three physicians also were defense witnesses, testifying they examined the girl but could find no evidence of an attack.

STOLEN GOODS FOUND IN RAID

Northampton, Oct. 18—When police raided the home of W. Ladyslaw Nawrocki, Factory st., near the Smith College campus, they found not only a quantity of liquor but apparently solved a series of thefts from Yale and Dartmouth students who had parked their cars along the street while calling on Smith College girls.

The raiding officers found, besides the liquor, a brown leather suitcase, a suit of clothes, a quantity of shirts and pajamas, two leather handkerchief cases and a toilet set, believed by the police to have been stolen on October 11; a dress suitcase, believed to have been stolen on May 17; a camera, believed to have been stolen on May 29, and a pair of hockey skates, allegedly stolen December 16.

SALLIES SEEK $250,000

With the object of raising $250,000 the annual appeal of the Salvation Army in Greater Boston will get under way next Tuesday, with more than 100 business men and women heading the trade committees which will give co-operation.

Plans for the drive were discussed at a meeting of the executive committee of the advisory board and representatives of the Industrial and Women's Divisions at the Evangeline Booth Maternity Home and Hospital.

Philip R. Allen, chairman of the advisory board, and Col. Joseph Atkinson, in command of the army's forces in New England, expressed confidence in the successful outcome of the campaign.

POLICE HUNTING EXPRESS DRIVER ROBBER

New York, Oct. 18 (INS)—With Police Commissioner Grover Whalen in personal charge police today were making a search for Raymond I. Gallagher, chauffeur for the Brinks Express Company, who disappeared with an armored truck containing ten payrolls totalling $3,000 in cash.

According to the story told by Edward Roche and Floyd Chase, the other two members of the armored car crew, they left Gallagher in the truck yesterday while they went into the Chemical Bank and Trust Company to make a deposit. They returned in a few minutes to miss both Gallagher and the truck.

Word of the disappearance of the truck was flashed to all uniformed men in the city and it was discovered quite a bit later parked about two blocks from the bank.

Later in the day a man who the police said walked into a postal telegraph office and hired a messenger to take a package to the Brinks Express company office. The package contained the payroll envelopes, all empty with the exception of one that still contained $500 in bank notes. Why this money was not taken police cannot explain.

Gallagher had been employed by the Brinks Company for one year and three months at a salary of $125 a month. The company operates 27 armored trucks in the metropolitan district.

Senate May Probe Washington Police

Washington, Oct. 18 Investigation of the entire affairs of the District of Columbia government loomed today. The sub-committee of the Senate committee on district affairs decided to ask the [illegible] justice to conduct the investigation.

Action of the committee is without precedent, and grows out of charges of general inefficiency in connection with the Virginia McPherson murder inquiry. Under the Senate committee plan, the justice department would investigate not only the police, but the United States attorney's office and the district commissioners themselves.

Returns Fortune in Securities to Owner

New York, Oct. 18 Oscar H Strobel, Jr., El Paso cowboy-artist on the way to Berlin in search of fame via art, has found a fortune and given it up. He got the wrong suitcase when porters tumbled baggage off a train. At his hotel he found it contained $250,000 worth of stocks and bonds. He telephoned a bank. The securities were identified by number and returned to the owner, Frederick Appel of Indianapolis, who gave back Strobel's shirts and ties. Strobel is on the way to Berlin on a scholarship.

Dean Represents B. C. at Memphis

Boston College will be represented by Dean Dooley at the meeting of the American Bar Association in Memphis, Tenn., which will be held next week. This is the first chance that the new B. C. law school has had to be represented at the section of legal education.

This section will discuss the question of standards for admission to the bar and will give particular attention to the rule of the bar association that two years in college are required for the study of law.

Captain's Widow Christens Cruiser

Wilhelmshafen, Germany, Oct. 18 (AP) The largest cruiser of the New German navy, the 6000-ton Leipzig was launched today. It is the third cruiser to bear that name.

The vessel was christened by the widow of the captain of a former Leipzig which was sunk at the battle of Falkland Islands in 1914 her dedicatory words being: "To the rescue of the fatherland."

The ship is 575 feet long and has a beam of 54 feet.

TO PREPARE FOR ZEPP POLAR FLIGHT

Berlin, Oct. 18 (AP)—Despite the disinclination shown by the crew of the Graf Zeppelin to make the Polar trip planned for next spring, the Aeroarctic Society is proceeding with its preparations for the flight.

The society's representative, Prof. Bleistein, left today on the steamer Reliance for New York to complete arrangements for a Fairbanks base and to supervise shipment of fuel, reserves and spare parts. Prof. Weigand also is going to America to arrange radio equipment and discuss the flight's scientific work with American scientists.

The Aeroarctic Society insists the flight must be made, according to contract, and that the trouble with the dirigible crew is up to its master, Dr. Hugo Eckener. Three representatives of the Aeroarctic Society have gone to Friedrichshafen to settle details.

PREDICTS WAR AGAINST CAPITAL

Moscow, Oct. 18 (AP)—Clemence Voroshilov, war commissar addressing the Communist Youth League today declared war between the capitalistic classes and the proletariat was inevitable. At the same time he asked for opportunity to prepare better for such a struggle, adding that Soviet Russia wished to complete her present five-year reconstruction plan.

Referring to China, Voroshilov said the Red party had sufficient power to control the 'Chinese militarists and capitalists to honor their agreements with the Soviet government."

OXFORD GIRL ENROLLS AT WELLESLEY

To complete her studies in English literature Miss Winifred Knox of Oxford University, England is now enrolled at Wellesley college to work for an M. A. degree.

The English girl said she was attracted to America by the recent notable work of American scholars in the field of literature. The visitor finds the standard of academic work about the same as that at Oxford.

Miss Knox was enthusiastic about the habit of American colleges in adapting class songs to every occasion. She is particularly thrilled by the chapel step singing, "not only by the spontaneity with which the songs are sung, but also by the delightful tones." She said that in this country the students seemed averse to walking much except "to go somewhere."

Hindenburg Scores Young Plan Attack

Berlin, Oct. 18 (AP) President von Hindenburg today took occasion to condemn as an unjustifiable and regrettable personal political attack paragraph four of the Nationalist plebiscite appeal, which would punish as traitors ministers signing the Young plan or other national obligations.

London Honors Boy Scouts' Founder

The spectators included the lord mayor and mayoress, city dignitaries, the Archbishop of Canterbury and prominent society leaders. Lord Baden-Powell is founder of the Boy Scouts.

Lindy Sees Early End to Forced Landings

New York, Oct. 18—Forced landings will be unknown five years hence in the opinion of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who with his bride, the former Anne Morrow, has just returned from an air tour of 21 countries in and about the Carribean.

Lindy announced that he is planning another flight to South America, but the date has as yet been set. He also denied a report that he is at work writing another book.

"In five years we will have planes we must have them that simply won't land when you don't want them to," he said. "They just won't come down in forced landings.

"We must be able to take off in fog in New York, for instance, and land in fog in Chicago or any other mid-Western city.

"They will come, there is not the slightest doubt in my mind as to that. Radio will help immensely."

The possibility of sight-seeing tours in the air was broached to Lindbergh as a result of his observation of Mayan ruins, easily seen from the air on his flight over Yucatan.

"Pan American Airways will conduct such tours if enough sightseers wish to make the trip," he smiled. "In a smaller way we will do something on that order when we start passenger service over that territory."

Staging Crash Kills One, Another Hurt

Nicholas Nazzaro, 59, of East Eagle st., East Boston, was fatally injured, and a fellow carpenter, Joseph Mallett, 52, of East Eagle st. was badly injured when the staging on which they were at work at the house of 137 Eutaw st., East Boston, collapsed, and they dropped 30 feet to the ground.

Nazzaro died a few minutes after his arrival at the East Boston Relief Hospital. Mallett was treated for a fracture of the left leg and severe injuries to the body.

THREE BISHOPS INSTALL EDROP

Springfield, Oct. 18 (AP)—With three bishops of the Episcopal church among notables taking part, Dr. Percy T. Edrop was installed today as dean of Christ Church Cathedral by Bishop Thomas F. Davies, head of the Western Massachusetts diocese.

Bishop Herbert Shipman, suffragan bishop of New York, preached the sermon. Bishop John Chamberlain Ward of Erie, Pa., also was present. The installation followed a procession, of which Rev. A. Vincent Bennett of Fitchburg was master of ceremonies and the Rev. Charles W. Burt of this city was marshal.

The new dean is a Masonic grand chaplain. Herbert W. Dean, Massachusetts Masonic grand master, and suite and six grand chaplains were in the procession. So were the entire vestry and choir of All Saints' Church in Belmont, of which Dean Edrop was formerly rector. Five [illegible] pastors of Christ Church, recently created a cathedral, also marched.

WANTS YORK TO GET RUM NESTS

Binghamton, N. Y., Oct. 18 (AP)—"I suggest immediate dispatch of a telegram to the Secretary of the Treasury at Washington, asking for the appointment of Sergeant Alvin C. York, as a federal prohibition agent to get those yet uncaptured gun nests of the bootleggers on the border of federal prohibition," said Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin of Brooklyn, president of the New York State W. C. T. U., in accepting re-election today.

Mrs. Colvin now enters upon a third term as president.

Psychologist Comes to Aid of St. Nick

Baltimore, Oct. 18—Dr. Knight Dunlap, professor of experimental psychology at the Johns Hopkins University, came out strongly in defense of Santa Claus in reply to Dr. William S. Sadler of Chicago.

Dr. Sadler declared that every five-year-old child should be told that there is no Santa Claus, that old St. Nick is nothing but a myth.

Dr. Dunlap said:

"Santa Claus is one of the most beautiful and probably the least harmful of childhood myths. How does Dr. Sadler or anyone else know that there is not such a thing as Santa Claus? Certainly Santa Claus plays as important part in our lives as the figures in the old Greek mythology. Wherever a legend has sprung up, somewhere there has been a cause for it.

"It is absurd to say that telling a child the legend of Santa Claus will shatter that child's faith in the parents' veracity. There is nothing that a child likes better than dramatization, and when the child learns the truth about Santa Claus he is perfectly willing to transfer his appreciation from the jolly red-robed figure to his parents."

Borrows Airplane; Is Held for Theft

New York, Oct. 18 (INS)—Elliott [illegible], 30, was held in bail today for a highly original felony, the theft of an airplane. He was arrested on a charge of having borrowed a Travelair biplane valued at $2500 from the Jamaica sea airport and of having failed to return it.

What Is A One Cent Sale?

IT is a sale where you buy an item at the regular price, then another item of the same kind for one cent. As an illustration: The standard price of Klenzo Dental Creme is 50c, you buy a tube at this price and by paying one cent more, or 51 cents, you get two tubes and save 49 cents. Every article in this sale is a high class standard piece of merchandise, just the same as is sold every day at regular price. No limit—buy all you want, but on Friday and Saturday only!

A Profit-Sharing Method of Advertising

THIS sale was developed by the United Drug Co. as an advertising plan. Rather than spend large sums of money in other ways to convince you of the merit of these goods, they are spending it on this sale in permitting us to sell you a full size package of high standard merchandise for one cent. It costs money to get new customers, but the sacrifice in profit is justified, as we know the goods will please you.

AIRPLANE RIDE TO INCLUDE BOAT TRIP

By GEORGE W. HAMBLIN

The two independent airplane operators at the Boston Airport, Tom Croce, the "Gypsy pilot," and Val Chick, fog flying expert from Gloucester, will start a new service to their customers tomorrow when they offer a speedboat ride in conjunction with the regular airplane ride.

Croce is the owner of a speedboat, and has been testing the craft for the past week after a motor overhaul. Tom says the boat is all ready to step out and go places, carrying six persons beside the pilot, chauffeur or whatever one is called when one drives a speedboat.

When the airplane passenger is landed after a cruise about the Boston skylanes, he will be driven in an automobile over to the seaplane float off the southern bulkhead of the airport, and there will be loaded into the speedboat and taken for a whirl around the harbor.

The pair, Croce and Chick, also state that telephone reservations for airplane rides will be accepted. The speed boat will meet customers at the landing at the South Station and whisk them to the Airport, there to be taken up for a ride, and then brought back to the South Station, all for the regular five-dollar bill.

This means that these two boys, ever on the alert for some different means to serve the flying public of Boston, have opened up a new feature in joy hop flying over on Jeffries Point.

Croce and Chick are still carrying passengers at their two cents per pound rate, and will continue to do so. The speedboat thrill will be lacking for this class of rides, however.

FARRIS ON LAST HOP

The second one of Colonial's tri-motor pilots to hand in his resignation is Homer Farris, who has pushed the big Fords over the daily service for the past several months.

Homer is going to South America early next month, and we will have all the dope about his activities down there in the near future.

Meanwhile, Homer makes his last round trip tomorrow, and then will take up his residence in New York. All the boys like this chap, and everybody will be sorry to see him leave. As a matter of fact, Homer had a hard time getting out of Bay State Flying Service's office building when it became known that he was making his last trip tomorrow. The gang gathered around and wished him many happy landings, and almost wrung his hand off.

This South America business is pretty hot, Homer being the second one to go down there. Kirby Whitsett, a former Colonial pilot, is already on his way down.

NEW OIL HEATER

East Coast Aircraft Sales Corp., local Travel Air and Wright Whirlwind dealers and service agents, have become New England distributors of the newest wrinkle in winter flying, called "Thermo-Pete." The gadget consists of a heating unit inserted in the oil tank, with a plug on the outside of the fuselage. An ordinary electric light cord is inserted in the plug, and the oil is heated in the tank.

When the cold winter air visits us Thermo-Pete will allow the operating companies to save plenty of wear and tear on motors in warming up, because the instrument will heat any oil tank in 20 [illegible] to a half-hour.

Frank LeMan, sales manager for East Coast, is all hot and bothered about the heater, and is rapidly lining up the airplane owners of New England.

The boy LeMan is on to every new thing that comes out, and pretty soon East Coast will have a complete line of everything for your airplane.

MYSTERY SHIP DUE

The Travel Air "mystery ship" is due at the airport at noon. And it should shatter the existing speed record for the distance between Long Island and Boston.

Incidently, Eric Wood, the pilot of the speed ship, is the holder of the world's record for outside loops, having performed 14 of them with his 300 horsepower tapered wing Laird biplane. All the more reason why the gang will be out in force when he flashes across the airport.

Had a short visit from Roy Ahern of Hartford, who is one of the leading barnstorming pilots in New England. He shares that honor with Charlie Arnold and Ross Owen, to name a couple of them, and they all have the knack of flying a Day Standard around like a pursuit plane.

Ahern told us that he had carried 5000 passengers since January of this year, 3000 in an OX-5 Challenger and the remainder in the Day Standard. He thinks this is pretty near a world's record for passengers carried over a nine-month period, and we think just about the same.

Astor Asks Action in Birth Control

Manchester, England, Oct. 18—Lady Astor is going on the warpath again. Her object is to place women in official positions to deal with women's problems.

She appeared before a meeting of the National Women's Council here shortly after that body had passed a resolution demanding that the ministry of health grant permission for medical officers and maternity clinics to dispense birth control information. The former Virginian scorned resolutions.

"It's action we want," she declared.

Illegal Practice Warning for Lawyers

Providence, Oct. 18—Allen B. MacDonald, 21, sentenced to a year in jail by Judge Capotosto in Superior court for escaping from State Prison when he had served three months of a [illegible] sentence, told the court he had given $22, all the money he had had in the world, to a lawyer who promised to obtain deferment of sentence for escaping. He never saw that lawyer again, he said.

[illegible] to tell MacDonald [illegible] issued a warning to the [illegible] such practices will not be tolerated.

Explains Meaning of License Ruling

Albany, Oct. 18 — Communications received by the bureau of motor vehicles indicate a misinterpretation of a recent ruling relative to drivers' licenses issued by Massachusetts authorities.

Charles A. Harnett, commissioner of motor vehicles, said that the new order will not permit residents of New York State to secure drivers' licenses in Massachusetts and use them in this State. By the reciprocal arrangement made in August a resident of Massachusetts with a driver's license issued in that State may drive in New York State without an additional New York driving permit or license.

DR. BARBOUR IS INAUGURATED AT BROWN

P[illegible] ell [illegible] student who 40 years ago [illegible] in the [illegible] public schools [illegible] formally inaugurated as the [illegible] p[illegible] of Brown University.

Dr. Clarence Augustus Barbour's return to his Alma Mater was the center of the greatest demonstration in the history of Brown.

In keeping with all the treasured traditions of Brown, the inauguration was in the old First Baptist Meeting House of Roger Williams. Hundreds who lacked invitations were turned away, as the limited space was reserved for officers and the scores of visiting college presidents.

FOLLOW TRADITIONS

Two other time-honored traditions were followed. The first was for the high sheriff of Providence county to lead the [illegible] procession in full evening dress and high hat, with a sword swinging from his side.

The other tradition was the presence of the president of Harvard University, for this official of the oldest college in the country has always been present at every Brown inauguration of a new school head.

Seldom has College Hill been the scene of such colorful preparations as has predominated this year. The campus was crowded with hundreds of old grads and the general public. The long procession to the old meeting house where inaugurations have been held since 1770 was a striking event.

[illegible] or day ceremonies were held [illegible] the men and women [illegible] who received awards for excellence [illegible] during the year. President Frank P. Day of Union College [illegible] author and [illegible] during the war, addressed the [illegible].

K[illegible] OUT [illegible]

"[illegible] are still [illegible] learning," said the Union College head, "and [illegible] school work, mass education and poorly paid teachers still hamper the forward march."

Dr. Day predicted a [illegible] when students will enter college because they wish to acquire wisdom and have the capacity for such acquisition."

President Lowell of Harvard, in congratulating the University upon securing Dr. Barbour, said that the [illegible] of college personnel problems which lies "in eliminating those who are unable or unwilling to make the effort and make it fruitfully."

He continued: "The attempt to include large numbers [illegible] standards to [illegible] the lowest members of the column and what is worse, a lowering of the aspirations of the whole body. In part the solution lies in making intellectual excellence appear worth while by demanding qualities that strong young men admire."

"Brown University was founded and is maintained as a Christian college," Dr. Barbour said in his inaugural response, but he hastened to point out that never has the university violated the provision of its charter that "into this liberal and catholic institution shall never be admitted any religious tests."

TWO IMPORTANT DUTIES

The new president said faith must be a part of modern education. "Regarding a great range of truth, no man gets at it by reason alone," he declared. "We must urge the supreme importance of the unseen and the permanent as over against the apparent and the transient."

The speaker held the two important duties of the schools and colleges today to be inculcation of a spirit of service in the individual as payment of the debt of the individual to society, and, secondly, the fostering of "[illegible] increasing reverence for personality."

New President of Brown University Being Honored at Great Celebration in Providence

Musicians to Meet

The first meeting of the season of the Women Musician's Association of Boston will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the League House, Arlington st., Corner of Beacon st.

Hall to Deliver Russell Lecture

Dr. Frank Oliver Hall of Tufts College, professor in the Department of Homiletics in the School of Religion, will deliver the annual Russell Lecture in Goddard Chapel next Sunday at 4 o'clock. He will take for his subject "Christian Principles and Economic Problems." This lecture is made possible by the will of James Russell of Arlington, and is an annual event.

Noted 3-Ring Defences of Paris Abandoned

Paris, Oct. 18 (AP)—Paris, the goal of many an invading army since the time of Caesar, has not only done away with the three rings of fortifications that encircled her before the great war, but has greatly decreased the troops that once were on constant peace-time duty within her walls.

Before the war, the garrison of Paris counted twenty thousand bayonets and four thousand sabres, with the artillery, the engineers and supplementary services bringing the number of men above 25,000. Today only 2500 poilus are on duty in the capital.

Whenever the peace of the city seems menaced, troops are brought in from the provinces by rail

Close Reservoirs to Hold Pressure

Pittsfield, Oct. 18—Water from Onota Lake has been turned into the mains of the city, and at the same time the gates at Farnham Dam, the city's usual source of water supply, and Ashley Reservoir were shut off to conserve what little water is left to maintain pressure in event of a serious conflagration.

The chlorinating plant has been installed at Onota Lake, but nevertheless consumers are warned to boil the water.

In cabinets of your choice

and up, less tubes

THIS very evening, in your own home, you can have the greatest radio yet produced—and pay no more—perhaps a lot less—than for sets offering none of the startling new features of the new Atwater Kent Screen-Grid.

Three stations within a tiny part of an inch on your dial—instantly separated!

Yes, sir! At last you can have a radio that radio engineers have almost despaired of ever achieving—a radio of 10-kilocycle selectivity—the goal of the laboratory's dreams—and you can have it in your home right now!

And remember, along with this phenomenal selectivity you get every other better thing that Atwater Kent Screen-Grid Radio offers.

Truer tone! No hum to cloud its beauty! Greater volume when you need it! Longer reach! Station separation as fine as the point of a needle.

Watch the others come to Screen-Grid!

Atwater Kent saw that Screen-Grid tubes were the coming thing, and saw it FIRST. Designed a new radio from the ground up—new, different, astonishingly better! Ten times more amplification with each Screen-Grid tube! A hundred times more power than with old-style tubes!

That's Screen-Grid! Atwater Kent Screen-Grid! The one that challenges any radio in the world to equal it at any point.

Have the finest in radio. Insist on our Screen-Grid demonstration at a dealer's or at home. Congratulate yourself for the rest of your life that you made yours an Atwater Kent Screen-Grid—NOW!

STUDY PLAN FOR 25 NEW AUTO SUIT COURTS

A new tribunal to relieve congestion in the courts arising from automobile liability insurance law, is the suggestion of Dunbar F. Carpenter, to relieve the crowded dockets.

The special commission created by the Legislature to study the compulsory automobile liability insurance law, has Carpenter's proposal, with others offered, under consideration at its session today.

"It is an outrage the way a man with an honest claim has to wait a period of years before getting a court settlement," Carpenter said.

He suggested as a means of relieving congestion the establishment of a new tribunal consisting of a judge and two advisory laymen. Under this plan 25 such courts would be presided over by five Superior Court justices and 20 district court judges. These would be established throughout the State. Under this arrangement, in his opinion, at least 7000 cases a year would be disposed of.

Donald C. North, New Haven insurance man, explained the financial responsibility law of Connecticut, which has been in effect since 1926, to the commission.

The purpose of this law, he explained, is to pull down the cost of insurance to the motorist with no record, while the man who has accidents pays an increase.

George R. Nutter of the Boston Bar Association expressed the belief that supervision of contingent fees would greatly diminish the possibilities of fraudulent practices by members of the bar.

Samuel H. Mildram, public utilities expert, advocated the establishment of one private company which, by statute, could handle this form of insurance.

Mildram expressed the opinion that insurance companies are in the same position as public utilities, as insurance is as necessary today as water, gas or electricity.

Berlin Mayor Makes Plea for Fairness

Kansas City, Oct. 18 (AP)—A plea for fairness in estimates of his country was made here at a meeting of Americans of German descent by Dr. Gustave Boess, mayor of Berlin, who is on his way to New York to sail for Germany October 24. The occasion of his address was the 10th anniversary of the Lincoln chapter of the Steuben Society.

Speaking of the American army of occupation, he said "there was revealed to us the honesty, friendliness and charity of the American soldier."

Quincy Student Elected

Mrs. August Belmont Helps Write a Play

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—Eleanor Robson Belmont, a dramatic star before her marriage to the late August Belmont, has collaborated with Harriet Ford in a play of a mining town. "Christopher Rand" will be produced on Broadway shortly.

GIRL AT GRAVE IDENTIFIES PAL'S BODY

New Orleans, Oct. 18 (AP)—Before an open grave on the shores of the Mississippi, Ione Ord, sophisticated city girl, gasped, swooned and finally admitted a bullet torn body was that of Jack Kraft, New York newspaperman and adventurer with whom she had started out to see the world.

A small tattoo of an Indian head on the forearm furnished the identification along with a scar on a knee.

The sight of the body and the scene of the grave in the sand on the banks of the Mississippi 30 miles below New Orleans did not cause the girl to change her story. She swooned a half dozen times and attempted to fight her way free once, but gave officials no additional information as to who killed Kraft, whose body went hurtling from the Creole, New York-New Orleans boat.

The girl told the officers she would swear neither she nor Sam Epstein, ship's steward, had shot Kraft, but would not swear that John McGuildrick, second officer, had not shot him. She declared she did not know who had shot him.

She said both McGuildrick and Epstein had come to her assistance when Kraft was beating and choking her in a jealous rage. She declared she had seen Kraft leap overboard.

The investigators are convinced the girl knows more than she has told about the tragedy. The case will be laid before the grand jury Saturday.

England Will Pay Widows to Emigrate

London, Oct. 18 (AP)—J. H. Thomas, Lord Privy Seal in the Laborite government, who has been given the task of finding a solution for the unemployment problem, today announced aid for widows who emigrate to the Dominions.

He stated the Government had decided that any widow in Great Britain who felt she wanted a chance for her children in the Dominions and emigrated, would be paid a pension for herself and children wherever she might be as long as it was within the empire.

Public Consistory Will Be Held Oct. 28

Vatican City, Oct. 18 (AP)—Semi-official announcement was made today that a public consistory will be held on October 28 at which the Red Hat will be bestowed upon the Cardinal Archbishop of Toledo, Spain.

Nadir Khan Ends 'Water Boy's' Reign

London, Oct. 18—Official confirmation of the overthrow of Bacha Sakao, the one-time water boy who set himself up as King of Afghanistan after driving out Amanullah Khan, are received in London.

Confirmation of the victory of Nadir Khan over the usurper was received from Kabul and indicated that Bacha Sakao had escaped. There was some doubt as to whether Nadir Khan had become king.

GILCHRIST'S—SEVENTH FLOOR

SAYS N. E. FAILS TO GET SHARE OF U. S. PLUMS

Waterville, Me., Oct. 18 (AP)—Declaring that "while Uncle Sam is loading a Christmas table with $600,000,000" for the western farmers, "New England finds itself denied a seat," former Governor Ralph O. Brewster, speaking at the opening forum at Colby College today, called upon New England to make its voice heard in no uncertain tones [illegible] section [illegible] tribution that [illegible]

It would seem that New England has [illegible] much of [illegible] the former governor [illegible] referring to the confining of governmental aid to co-operative marketing organizations of farmers, of which New England has almost none.

This policy may be well adapted to the situation in other sections but it is almost prohibitive as applied to the New England states.

Mr. Brewster, who [illegible] generally believed will be a candidate to succeed Arthur R. Gould in the United States Senate in 1930, asserted that the "west has secured what it desired and now is quite prepared to wreck the measures of relief that are so urgently required for the other sections of the United States."

Referring to the western farm bloc members as "mavericks," he said: "Soon the country must determine whether both the interests of the nation and the parties would NOT be better served by permitting them to gnash their teeth in outer darkness until they decide upon which side of the economic fence they will plant their wandering feet."

In closing he called for New England representatives in the Senate who, statesmen or politicians, wise or unwise, would have an incorrigible determination which would distinguish the New England breed.

Secret Out, Girls

Because the public learned her identity, Laura Harding, 22, heiress to the $7,000,000 estate of her father, the late J. Horace Harding, quit her role on a Chicago stage. She was getting $40 per week. (International Newsreel photo.)

HEIRESS DROPS STAGE ROLE

Chicago, Oct. 18—Her identity [illegible] by the public, an heiress to $7,000,000 quit her part on a Chicago stage.

Laura Harding, 22-year-old daughter of the late J. Horace Harding, New York banker and chairman of the American Railway Express Company, had a three-day debut in a $40-a-week role.

She picked up a telephone, expressed her displeasure to the theatrical press agent she supposed had given her away and announced that she would not appear in the cast again. She said she would return to New York.

Confederate Vet Dead

Dothan, Ala., Oct. 18 (AP)—Brig. Gen. C. W. Mitchell of Birmingham, Confederate veteran, died, having succumbed to a heart attack while doing the minuet, the last dance, at a reunion. He was 83 years old.

GASTONIA CASE MAY GO TO JURY TONIGHT

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 18 (INS)—A [illegible] farmers came [illegible] court room here [illegible] six hours more of [illegible] and irony before taking into their hands the fate of Fred Erwin Beal, general [illegible] of the Gastonia strike and six other radical labor organizers.

The seven men are [illegible] with murdering Police [illegible] O. F. Aderholt and wounding [illegible] officers [illegible]

[illegible]

A quite different [illegible] shown by the defense [illegible] the officers [illegible] with moonshine were on an impromptu raid of the union headquarters with the avowed intention of "kiding out the [illegible] labor agitator" and that after they fired the first shot there was such a confusion [illegible] a spray of bullets from [illegible] guns [illegible] their leader.

In court [illegible] the state arguments were half over.

MOORS KILL 50 IN AMBUSH ON FRENCH

[illegible] Algeria, Oct. 18 (AP)—Moorish tribesmen have [illegible] raid on French [illegible] the [illegible] slopes of the Atlas [illegible] cutting up a column of the French Foreign Legion.

[illegible]

The attack was [illegible] in months.

State Dinner Unites Spain and Portugal

Madrid, Oct. 18 (INS)—Relations between Spain and Portugal were more cordial than ever today following a state dinner at the Royal Palace here last night which was attended by the President of Portugal and Primo de Rivera, the Spanish dictator.

King Alfonso, the host at the dinner, made a speech in which he welcomed the Portuguese president with the Spanish decoration Carlos III.

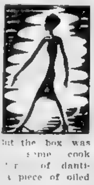
Dieting "So Much Nonsense," Says Food Expert

SCHOOL LUNCH BOX A PROBLEM FOR MOTHERS

Container Should Be Neat and Attractive as Well as Full of Good Nourishing Food

WALKING through the household department of a large department store last week, I saw a little red-and-white checked folding tin lunchbox, the exact duplicate of one I carried in [illegible] school days. And it brought back very vividly the memory of how ashamed I used to be of the lunches therein.



The thick, homely sandwiches [illegible] filled with heavy slabs of cold [illegible] the latter was in lumps, and [illegible] But the box was [illegible] same cook [illegible] of dainti- ness. Not even a piece of oiled [illegible] the bread from [illegible]

[illegible] I remember the envy [illegible] soul at the dainty [illegible] butter and wafer-thin [illegible] sandwiches brought by the [illegible] at the dainty [illegible] turkey dressing [illegible] German girl [illegible] and the deviled eggs [illegible] prepared and wrapped by [illegible] My lunch was the [illegible] in the year [illegible] being between [illegible] sandwiches.

[illegible] my family would [illegible] could they have known [illegible] of those lunches were [illegible] the bushes, while I [illegible] on a pickle lime [illegible] that at least did [illegible] drivers mid [illegible]

[illegible] CRITICISM

[illegible] of im[illegible] prob- [illegible] propor- [illegible] of eyes [illegible] than yellow

[illegible] your youngsters [illegible] No doubt it is brim [illegible] food, but is [illegible] the eyes? Or do [illegible] finds a [illegible] the bushes, too? [illegible] interest- [illegible] just made on [illegible] lunches that [illegible] excuse for [illegible] wrapping [illegible] for a few [illegible] napkins, paper [illegible] paper containers [illegible] may be [illegible] and almost any 5 and 10. Even paper forks and spoons may be [illegible], as well as small paper plates.

[illegible] lunch a pro[illegible] chances [illegible] well worth our while to devote a little time and thought to this important subject.

Of course, the container itself should be of material that can be washed and scoured frequently, and each article should be wrapped in wax paper. The food may be simple and wholesome, but it should offer variety from day to day, and, above all, it should be packed daintily.

NOURISHING LUNCH

Corned beef—chopped and mixed with a mild prepared mustard placed between thinly buttered slices of graham bread, cut into triangles, separately wrapped, is hard to improve on. In a paper container lettuce hearts may be carried, with another tiny container of salad dressing or the delicious Russian or Thousand Island dressing that so many children prefer and that come all ready prepared. Crisp cheese crackers and a shining red apple complete a nourishing lunch.

Or a slice of tender pink roasted ham may be placed on a buttered slice of graham or whole wheat bread, covered with a thinly sliced layer of sweet pickles and another buttered slice of bread. Cut off crusts and cut the sandwiches in squares or triangles for easy eating. Graham crackers spread with raspberry jam or marshmallow cream make an acceptable dessert, followed by an orange and a five-cent box of raisins. These conveniently boxed raisins, appetizing, healthful, inexpensive, [illegible] important place in the school lunch box as well as in the [illegible] diet. They can be made into delicious filling for simple vanilla cream cookies, too, as well as in a variety of simple cakes and fruit bars that make the dessert course of the school lunch something to look forward to.

Hermits, for instance, are always welcome, and then there are the raisin oatmeal cookies, raisin sugar cookies, Banbury tarts, raisin gingerbread with chocolate icing, and for an extra treat, cluster of raisins dipped in dipping chocolate. Entire wheat bread with raisins and nut filling makes a delicious sandwich, as does the always-popular bi-weekly raisin bread spread with sweet butter or jelly.

DEVILED HAM HANDY

The deviled ham and celery sandwiches are an unusually delicious combination and are made by mixing together one-half cup finely chopped celery, one-quarter cup finely chopped green pepper, one small can of superior quality deviled ham with enough dressing to spread easily.

Deviled ham and chopped hard boiled eggs mixed with mayonnaise are another excellent sandwich filling, not to mention the delicious deviled ham and tomato-sandwiches made by spreading one slice of bread with deviled ham, the other slightly with mayonnaise and a thin layer of tomato slices, then pressing the two together. Deviled ham, chicken and mayonnaise is equally popular between fresh white bread. The older boys are particularly fond of bread spread with deviled ham with a fried egg between the slices.

Here's Delicious One-Dish Meal

For delicious one-dish meal, sprinkle pork tenderloin with salt and pepper and bake in covered casserole one-half hour. Cook shredded cabbage in boiling water 20 minutes. Arrange the tenderloin above the cabbage. Serve with small apples boiled slowly in syrup 15 minutes.

Serve This Peanut Butter Toast Hot

Cream ½ cup peanut butter with 1 cup milk. Add ¾ tsp salt, a few grains of pepper and 1 slightly beaten egg. Remove the crusts from slices of bread and cut in halves or strips. Dip them in the mixture and saute in butter. Serve hot with a garnish of sweet pickles.

Smoother Product

Add two level teaspoons of baking powder to every batch of chocolate fudge, while beating. You will get a smoother, finer product.

It's Time to Prepare for the Halloween Party

Here's how the typical Halloween party for the youngsters will look, and, indeed, they are looking forward to the big night of bobbing apples, doughnuts, the funny face and, of course, the "goblin." It's only once a year and the kiddies certainly remember the night.

BRIDES NOW IN EVENING CLASSES

ONE of New England's most progressive and worth while activities is the Martha Lee Women's Club featured in connection with the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

Today [illegible] substantial New England homemakers are banded together in this club which has for its platform the ambition [illegible] better our lives [illegible] our home lives.

Martha Lee, founder and president of this representative women's organization, keeps close personal touch with her club members through a correspondence that [illegible] bers over 4100 letters an[illegible] club g[illegible] together [illegible] cent luncheons at the Ritz-Carlton and the [illegible] and the four excursions to the Weber D[illegible] Inn at Wrentham. One memorable [illegible] held at the Sorosis Farm at Marblehead numbered over 200 [illegible] On another occasion a very large group was taken through the great warehouses of the Atlantic & Pacific stores.

Since the opening of this cooking school, on October 15, 1926, 46,766 visitors have been registered. The first Martha Lee model kitchen was opened at 92 Summer st. as a service for New England homemakers. Its capacity was [illegible] guests. In March 1927, it was necessary to build a second kitchen in the Hearst Building at 5 Winthrop sq., which would accommodate 100. This, too, was soon crowded to capacity, and the third kitchen in 17 months was built on the fifth floor of the Hearst Building and opened on March 19, 1928. This is the home of the present Martha Lee school of practical cookery and will accommodate practically 300 people (265 seated).

Six classes in the homemakers school have been graduated and Class VII is at present in session on Wednesday afternoons. A complete course [illegible] a 10-week period during which every step in [illegible] is covered [illegible] for [illegible] the way of new, [illegible] and delicious dishes to add to their repertoire.

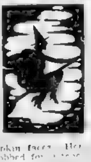
Among the class members we have the wife of a Massachusetts senator, several school teachers, eight doctor's wives, a number of [illegible] nurses [illegible]

[illegible] Martha Lee Women's Club [illegible] the Evening [illegible] brides and business [illegible] is held every Tuesday evening at 6.30 p. m. There are 260 members enrolled, with a waiting list of over 200 already registered for the next class, which will open on January 15. The afternoon school also has a waiting list for January.

If you are unable to attend the school, don't forget that Martha Lee's daily article appears on the Magazine page of this paper, her Marketing column once weekly and that her best advice on household problems is freely yours if you will drop her a line. Address her at 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

"WHEN the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock" it is time to think [illegible] about the Halloween party, because both young and old now enjoy the mysterious evening.

Years ago it was an evening of destruction and a night spent on the street. But times have changed. The Hall[illegible] party has supe[illegible] ceded the [illegible] of revelry [illegible] [illegible] the chil[illegible] the [illegible] because [illegible] have [illegible] in room or in the basement [illegible] attractively dec[illegible] orated with [illegible] leaves, corn [illegible] pumpkin faces. Her[illegible] be bobbed for [illegible] over [illegible] heated by a [illegible] ing fire made by placing a square electric lamp under red crepe paper.



WITCH'S CAKE

1-3 cup shortening.
1 cup molasses
1 cup sour milk.
1 egg
2¼ cups flour.
1[illegible] tsps. soda.
[illegible] tsp. salt
1 tsp. ginger
[illegible] tsp. cinnamon

Mix the molasses [illegible] the egg [illegible] ingredients [illegible] and to the moist [illegible] the melted fat [illegible] Beat well and bake [illegible] pan [illegible] oven [illegible] degrees F. for about [illegible] Take out of pan [illegible] of each [illegible] together [illegible] into square.

ICING

2 eggs whites
1½ cup sugar
1 tsp. cream of tartar
½ cup water

Boil sugar, water, cream of tartar till sirup spins a thread 240 degrees. Pour gradually on the stiffly beaten egg whites and beat until thick enough to spread on cake.

Chocolate witches will add to the attractiveness of the cake. These are easily drawn or painted using melted chocolate and a small brush. Favors or trinkets should of course be baked in the cake.

GHOST FACES

1 cup sugar.
⅓ cup shortening
¼ tsp. salt.
2 tsps. baking powder.
½ tsp. vanilla.
2 squares melted chocolate.
2 eggs.
½ cup milk
2 cups flour

[illegible] the eggs well [illegible] and baking powder [illegible] Bake in two layers 375 degrees moderate oven.

Cut into circles, cover with white or yellow icing and use pieces of almonds or hazelnuts or raisins to represent eyes, nose and mouth.

A CAKE LIKE THIS IS FOR HE-MEN

NINE out of ten of the stronger sex, and however strong there are few of them that will not admit a [illegible] complex, prefer chocolate [illegible]

CHOCOLATE POTATO CAKE WITH CREAMY FROSTING

Cream [illegible] half cup of [illegible] of sugar, [illegible] beaten eggs and a cup [illegible] Sift 2 cups [illegible] tsps baking powder [illegible] 1 tsp cinnamon and half of one grated nutmeg. Add these to the other ingredients alternately with ½ cup of hot milk in which 1½ squares of grated chocolate has been dissolved. Bake in a large tube pan, or in two rather small loaf tins.

This cake stays moist for a long time especially if frosted immediately and has a delicious flavor.

CREAMY FROSTING

One beaten egg, 2 squares melted chocolate, 2 tbsps. butter, 3 tbsps. milk, 1 cup granulated sugar, 6 tsp. vanilla.

Mix all ingredients, but vanilla. Bring to a good boil, take from fire, let cool, add vanilla and beat until creamy.

PEAR PASTRY IS TASTY

[illegible] canned pears [illegible] sirup made of pear sirup [illegible] sugar [illegible] of pear sirup. Baste the fruit often as it cooks in order to glaze the pears. When cool place a half pear on each piece of cake and pipe the edges and sides with whipped cream. Decorate with angelica.

WARNS AGAINST OVER-EATING AND WASTE

Lucy Allen, Principal of Boston School of Cookery, Says "Eat the Best—Plenty of It"

"DIETING is just so much nonsense."

This is the opinion of Lucy G. Allen, principal of the Boston School of Cookery and author of [illegible] books on the general subject of food.

This expert has [illegible] studied the whole problem of eating, including the infant's [illegible] day diet, and has answered many appeals for advice from [illegible] women. "You don't need [illegible] but you [illegible] over [illegible] [illegible] "This [illegible] in the [illegible] she [illegible] explaining [illegible] ing [illegible] rather referring [illegible] complaint [illegible] sulting from the [illegible] Hollywood diet.

Her own advice [illegible] the best—plenty of it—but [illegible] waste it."

NO "SECONDS"

The safest rule to follow, in her opinion, is to take [illegible] on the plate and refrain [illegible] seconds. She says that [illegible] cians and dieticians [illegible] that there is no need [illegible] out anything, providing [illegible] able check is kept on [illegible] eaten at each meal.

"Even a little sweet [illegible] then will not hurt [illegible] adding: "I do not mean [illegible] people should eat a [illegible] candy at a single sitting, but a few nibbles will not upset [illegible]

[illegible] can [illegible] a day and [illegible] "[illegible] are the most [illegible] people in the world," she asserted. "We [illegible] more than we need. I recall a German girl who lived in [illegible] during the World War. She [illegible] baked potato for [illegible]

AMAZED AT WASTE

When she came to America she was amazed at the waste. She was distressed at finding the garbage pail [illegible] at the end of one or two [illegible]

Another interesting comment made by the principal was that the standard of this country in quality of food is not so high as it was before the war. People seem to be [illegible] of cans and boxes more [illegible]

[illegible] spoke of a new [illegible] which seems to be gaining in [illegible] section. Housewives are learning to cook the [illegible] broccoli, which is a [illegible] of the cabbage family.

Only One Way to Make Tea to Enjoy All Its Flavor

First, rinse out the tea pot [illegible] boiling water. Second, put one teaspoon of tea in the pot for each cup of tea. Third, pour fresh boiled bubbling water on the tea leaves. Fourth, steep for five or six minutes and serve promptly.

Always serve with milk or cream. One pound of my favorite orange pekoe tea makes 300 cups, making the cost per cup less than a third of a cent. Surely little enough for the enjoyment most women obtain from their cup of cheer.

The degree of enjoyment we get from our tea depends both upon the method of its brew and upon what brand you buy. We choose the kind you'll find in the Martha Lee Kitchen, because we know that this orange pekoe tea is made from the finest crop, blended with skill [illegible] discriminating tea drinkers the world over. If you will try this tea and try our method of making it, we can assure you a delightful, invigorating drink for every occasion. Perhaps you are making tea [illegible] exactly according to these directions and yet not quite. Perhaps [illegible] the teapot [illegible] the tea [illegible] not be careful [illegible] boiling when [illegible] Each of these [illegible] matters is important. They form the difference between a weak, unsatisfactory concoction and real tea. The world's most refreshing and delightful drink, Orange pekoe tea, the kind we are [illegible] is a fine tea to drink, [illegible] give your husband, a [illegible]

Wedding Bell C[illegible]

TEA-TIME in the English counties means much more than just tea. It means gay conversation, dainty tables, fresh-cut flowers and of course traditional English biscuits, those elegant little cakes the making of which, in England, has been for generations an art. Made of milk and honey and a variety of rare flours, enriched with nature's most delicate flavors and blended with special English pastry butter, these tasty biscuits have been imported wherever civilization reaches [illegible] degree. But Americans need no longer import [illegible] they are now baked in America in English ovens with the imported methods. You buy [illegible] neighborhood store, at the same price you've been paying for ordinary cakes or cookies.

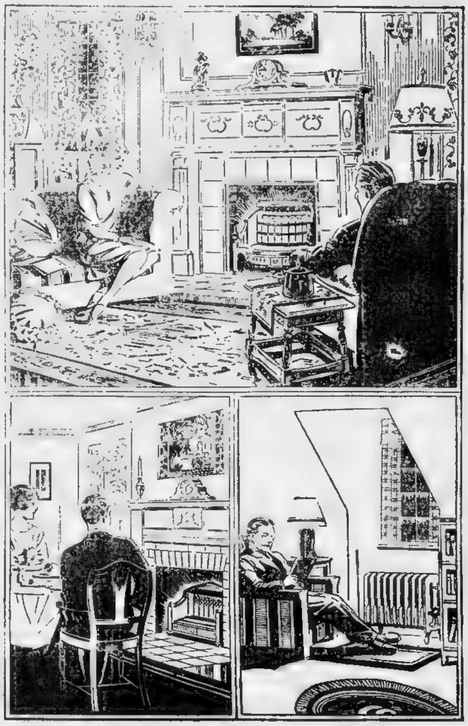
By Priscilla —

"Isn't it wonderful, John? No logs to carry. No ashes to dump. Just light a match and, presto, we bask in the warm, friendly glow of an open fire."



PRISCILLA is one of thousands of housewives who have found the secret of quick, cheerful heat on damp, chilly days and evenings.

She first had a gas fireplace installed in the living room, where it was such a success that John decided that the dining room must have one, too.

Then Priscilla rigged up a cozy little den for John in the attic. She had everything for it except warmth—and a gas steam radiator soon supplied that.

This, by the way, is an ideal form of quick heat for home kitchens, stores, markets, delicatessens, factory offices and barber shops. Each radiator is an independent steam-heating unit which can be installed quickly anywhere.

Your gas company will be happy to demonstrate their many wonderful aids to better living—fireplaces, radiators, cooking, water heating, laundry drying, house heating, refrigeration, store heating, incineration, garage heating.

Any of these may be enjoyed by you for a small down payment with convenient terms for the balance.

GETS $1000 FEE FOR SAVING PEACOX

New Rochelle, N. Y., Oct. 18 (INS).—The final chapter of the Earle F. Peacox murder trial was closed today when Sidney A. Syme, who saved the youthful slayer from the electric chair, received an order directing the county treasurer to pay the attorney $1000 for services and $1,359.17 for expenses and disbursements of preparation and other costs.

The list of expenses enumerates in detail the visits of the attorney to the county jail cell of Peacox, the many out-of-the-State trips for witnesses, stenographic cost and other details.

In commenting on the matter Syme said:

"The case is closed, and all the many details a matter of record. Just as soon as the law permits I shall visit Earl at Sing Sing. His life story is one of the most pathetic tales I have ever known in my practice as a lawyer.

"I doubt very much if the public to this day fully understands the almost inexplicable things of this boy's life."

Recovers Car Stolen 8 Months

His first visit to a Beacon st. house in eight months, resulted in Frederic Gooding of Main st., Concord, recovering his stolen automobile.

Last February when Gooding visited the house on Beacon st., his car was stolen. He notified the police.

Today while he was at the Beacon st. house again he was notified his car had been recovered in Cambridge.

Waistline Gives Much Variation to the Prevailing Silhouette Models From Noted Paris Designers

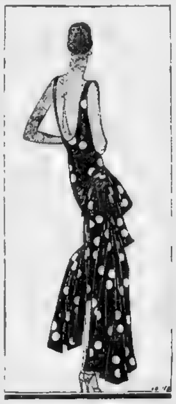
Evening Gowns Are Belted Extremely High by Stylists

Paris Bureau of the Boston Evening American

PARIS, France, Oct. 18.—[illegible] It is [illegible] Directoire [illegible] One dress [illegible] waistline [illegible] models [illegible] the individual [illegible] of their wearers, and the majority of women are content with the prevailing models requiring but slight modifications to give the much-to-be-desired "something different" air.

It is in these touches that [illegible] of the designer [illegible] for although the dress is very much of the mode, it manages to be subtly different, and what wise woman would ask more? Bows, floating panels, trains, cascading draperies, flaring flounces are all called upon to lend their infinite variety and charm to our formal frocks.

(SKETCHED IN PARIS)



New Creations Give Air of "Something Different"

THE two evening frocks shown today are both delightful examples of gowns that conform to the prevailing mode and yet are just a little different. The first is from Bernard et Cie, and is of white moire crepe. Strass and crystal bands form the shoulder straps, and at each side of the bodice are folds of the material, similar to box pleats terminating in deep circular flounces in two tiers on the skirt. The hemline is very uneven, being cut high in front, dipping sharply to points at each side while in back, it reaches nearly to the heels. The decolletage forms a deep "V" at the back.

BLACK taffeta with huge coin dots of grege velvet is the very effective medium used for the second frock which is quite characteristic of the house of Mo[illegible]. The straight narrow bodice reaches to the hips where fold upon fold, laid in horizontal pleats are drawn about the figure and flare out very suddenly at the side in an enormous bow with [illegible]

Builds Strong Bones and Solid Teeth

It is a great joy to know that your children are developing firm, robust bodies, strong bones and solid teeth.

But it is an even greater joy to be sure that you are doing the things for your youngsters now that will help them to keep on being strong and sturdy.

See that they get plenty of sunshine, exercise and rest. And when they are hungry, give them wholesome, body-building food.

Give them Ralston . . . the cereal that supplies much of the vital nourishment children need to develop properly.

Ralston is whole wheat . . . Nature's perfect food . . . in its most wholesome and delicious form. Children love it because it has the zestful flavor that urges young "tummies" to eat heartily. Buy a package today.

America Too Happy, Prosperous, President Speare Warns Women

Ame[illegible] has got to watch her step. We are too happy, too am[illegible], too prosperous, too smug, [illegible] complacent.

In a [illegible] talk on "Where Do We Go From Here," President Frank Palmer Speare of Northeastern [illegible] warning [illegible] of the Massachusetts Daughters of Vermont, at their opening [illegible] meeting in the Hotel Vendome. The [illegible] plans for [illegible] co[illegible].

[illegible] in which we live [illegible] conditions have [illegible] and [illegible] about [illegible] situation [illegible] with which [illegible] people [illegible] is also serious. People are stepping out of their class to buy expensive cars. They are fast losing the power to truly evaluate the necessities of life.

The one weakness that America must overcome is its high pressure salesmanship which sends people into the great beyond of keeping up with the Joneses [illegible] much of [illegible]. The one reason [illegible] here to there for no reason but to keep going. This is the dominating influence of city life.

City life which is punctuated by cheap boxes that are thrown up so close together as to shut out air and sunshine and freedom of living. I am a great exponent of open [illegible] places country [illegible] backs to the farm [illegible] ladies that [illegible] life and [illegible] life the [illegible] Vermont [illegible] farm [illegible] in [illegible] single [illegible] and [illegible] for that day when [illegible] hands must give way [illegible] spirit of youth and be ahead [illegible] that day when city life becomes [illegible] and when the [illegible] comes for country and simple life. [illegible] this little spot [illegible] that some day you can [illegible] and enjoy [illegible] God's beauty.

I am wondering if this country we live in is not a Fool's Paradise. It can't last. It simply can't. There is so much of everything that [illegible] great dream. Too [illegible] many inheritance, too much of everything that [illegible] sons of [illegible].

The world has shrunk and we have become involuntary neighbors of [illegible]. For you realize that [illegible] the radio wire [illegible] the world three times? The airplane will annihilate all idea of [illegible]. Just think we are [illegible] with the world's peoples and mind you, friends they don't love [illegible]. Rich friends are always envied and secretly disliked for their wealth by their neighbors.

"We must learn to relax, to repose, to be [illegible] with little."

Mrs. [illegible] president, introduced President Speare.

Mrs. [illegible] first vice-president of [illegible] Massachusetts [illegible] greetings [illegible] that the [illegible] Daughters of Vermont [illegible] one of the finest units [illegible] extolled the [illegible] of the women and asked their support in extending the glad hand of [illegible] to all club women.

Mrs. Frank G. Allen and Mrs. [illegible] Nichols were special guests of the day [illegible] were Miss [illegible] Winslow [illegible] the [illegible] Mrs. Carl [illegible] Watson, president [illegible] Mrs. William [illegible] sixth district [illegible] Mrs. Lewis J. H[illegible] president Vermont State Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Hathaway stressed the need of making Vermont such an attractive place that the young people would want to remain there instead of migrating to other places.

Another problem is that of the rural doctor she said. Vermont can not [illegible] medicine in the rural districts [illegible] she stated and in some places people [illegible] 35 miles from [illegible] clubwomen she said [illegible] the solution to this [illegible] situation and had already [illegible] nurses to alleviate the conditions.

Where did you get that COLD?

It is more important to know how to get rid of it! The cold germs that are even now multiplying by millions in your nose and throat—must be destroyed before grippe, pleurisy or pneumonia develop.

The easy, quick, modern way to destroy the germs and relieve a cold is by inhaling OZO MIST—a vapor-[illegible]. Drop a few drops on your handkerchief. Breathe deep of the healthful, pine-woods odor. Five medicaments are carried to all of the air passages. In a few minutes head stuffiness clears up. Irritation of the mucus membrane is relieved. Sneezing and coughing gradually lessen. Your system gets the chance to "come back" to normal.

Breathe OZO MIST for your cold—now. Keep it on your handkerchief all winter—to fight the cold germs that may attack you when you're in crowds.

Get OZO MIST at your local druggists. 50 cents the bottle of 50 treatments.

THERE is a definite reason for the great increase in used cars bought. Were used cars merely second-hand automobiles, there would be no increase in their sale . . . . fewer of them would be sold.

As it is, discerning buyers recognize the fact that every car on the road is a used car. That the majority of automobiles today have a reserve of POWER STAMINA and MECHANICAL RELIABILITY adequate for years of constant use.

Looked at from this angle, the used car offers MORE VALUE for LESS MONEY and the discerning public knows it.

CHAPTER X

NOW [illegible]

Stag was struggling with an embarrassment heretofore foreign to this self-assured young man. The [illegible] in the barn had touched his admiration and a [illegible] regret [illegible]. Before the men he had worn his old devil-may-care manner, but under [illegible] and softening thoughts were stirring.

The game little kid—shielding him that way before the darned M. P. . . . There was a little sport for you! . . . Not a whine out of her . . . too!

From the corners of his eyes he was watching the girl as she worked. Such a slim pretty kid [illegible] almost break [illegible] his hands . . . If only he had a chance to tell her he was sorry for saying [illegible]

Confound Soapy and Yom. Why the dickens didn't they clear out and give a fellow a chance.

Behind the girl's back he made furious gestures at them. Soapy's face immediately spread with an incredulous dumbness. Yom's eyes became black beads of exaggerated inquiry.

Stag felt his cheekbones burn. Darn their hides—horsing him like that! He continued in elaborate pantomime, a mistake for it was evident that the other two enjoyed the performance mightily.

"Oui, Monsieur." A dignified little bend of the yellow head, but the girl did not look at him.

Stag looked entreatingly at Yom and Soapy. They met his eyes with wide and knowing grins. He gave them a murderous glance and became desperate.

Moving close to the startled girl he spoke in a lowered tone. "Look here, miss, I want you to know that I thought you acted fine out there in the barn. It was darned sweet of you not to squeal on me to the Jones."

Violet eyes flashing up in a long cool look before the thick lashes swept down again.

"I do not tell on you," Marianne answered demurely, "because the American lieutenant like me much. If you offend to me he shoot you queek. If you steal my Anatole again though I am no more darned sweet. I will go." She checked herself with a little gasp as her eyes flashed to the top of the stairs.

"Francois! Bad boy! Come down here to me immediately."

A stir up there in the bend of the shadowy steps and Francois crept reluctantly from the place where he had been hiding and vastly enjoying the scene below.

As the boy came down in his nightrobe Stag spoke his astonishment. "Why . . . who's that?"

"It is my bad little Francois who should 'ave been in his bed an hour ago!" Marianne scolded the grinning youngster.

Soapy's low whistle sounded. "Well, can you beat that!" he whispered hoarsely to Yom. "An' her not lookin' a day over 20!"

This escaped the girl, as did Stag's rather crestfallen look. Up there in the dusk which Francois was forsaking, her quick ear had caught a snicker. She clapped her hands.

"Nanette—little mischief! I know you are up there. You come here to me, at once!"

Nanette's little white figure crawled in view, clasping baby Sylvestre by the hand.

"Oh, dear Marianne, we did not mean to dis bey, but we heard all the noise and we couldn't sleep and Francois said 'Let's get up and see what the soldiers were doing'—"

Nanette chattered her glib apology as she scampered down the stairs. Her small charge descended in a manner of his own on hands and knees and sidewise like a baby crab.

The faces of Soapy and Yom [illegible] a study in deep amazement. It was Stag, however, who voiced, rather breathlessly, the question which was burning in the minds of all three men.

"Say . . . these kids—they aren't ALL yours, are they, Mademoiselle?"

Nanette had flung herself on Marianne and was clasping her ecstatically about the knees. It was over her black curls that Marianne's clear gaze met Stag's concerned scowl.

"But certainly, Monsieur!" with gentle dignity. "Why else should they be here?"

"But—but—you seem so darned young"—stammered the sorely puzzled young man, "just a—a kid yourself—it's funny—"

"Say—if it ain't gettin' personal how long you been married, Miss?"

There was a little ruffle on Marianne's forehead as she tried to concentrate on the rapid English.

JUDGE TOURS HUB TO STUDY PARKING

Promises Police Support and Tells Autoists to Obey the Rules

Summonses for 300 parkers caught in the new drive to facilitate traffic movement through downtown Boston and the Back Bay, were issued today in municipal court.

They are the first issued since the police campaign began and are returnable Nov. 4, 6 and 8.

Seventy-five parkers tagged before the drive was started were fined $5 each in Judge Charles T. Carr's session today. The judge revealed that he had made several tours of downtown Boston to acquaint himself with conditions constantly being exploited before him in traffic cases.

Judge Carr disclosed his personal investigation when one parker testified that upon returning from a shopping expedition he discovered his automobile parked upon the opposite side of Bedford st. from which he had left it.

"I have made it my duty on several occasions to visit the downtown section and I have never yet run across any such condition," remarked the court. "You were on restricted territory anyway, and I don't believe your story.

"Policemen coming in here will have the co-operation of the court in doing their duty. From my observation, the streets are properly marked. The best thing for you autoists to do is to obey the rules and regulations."

JUDGE SCORES WOMAN DRIVER

"I've seen just such women as you before, women who think they are above the law and who resent being spoken to by a police officer. Ten dollars."

And so ended today in East Cambridge court, the brief trial of Mrs. Mary A. Walsh, 30, of State st., Lowell, charged with speeding in Arlington.

Judge Arthur P. Stone made the comment after listening to Motorcycle Officer Albert E. Ryan testify that she questioned his authority and gave him a "tongue-lashing."

The officer said her car was rolling at a speed of from 45 to 48 miles an hour.

Status of This Driver Puzzles Quincy Cops

Hit-and-run possibilities became all muddled today in Quincy when police endeavored to study out the status of an automobile operator who stopped and took the name and address of an injured boy, then drove away.

On the other side of the question was Richard Berquist, 12, of Arnold rd., Quincy, the injured boy, who admitted he told the driver he was not injured and who then ran back into the Francis Parker school in Faxon rd.

Young Berquist suffered cuts and bruises about the legs and was treated by the school physician.

Fire Alarm Pull Cost $50

Pulls Fire Alarm as Her Purse Is Stolen

No missing pocketbook is worth a recovery attempt that entails the ringing of a false alarm of fire.

The first woman in Boston charged with the offense, Miss Mary Mann, 30, of Chestnut ave., Jamaica Plain, discovered that today in Roxbury court when she was fined $50.

According to her own story in court, the fine was many times greater than the value of the pocketbook and the money it contained.

Miss Mann on the stand denied that she rang the alarm of fire from a box at Pret[illegible] and Parsons sts. just for excitement and on the dare of two male companions.

She testified that she had been with two men and after they left her she discovered that her pocketbook was missing. In distress she appealed to a woman pedestrian for advice. The woman, according to Miss Mann, advised her to ring in a fire alarm and the firemen would help her.

When the apparatus arrived with Police Sergt. George Keyes and Patrolman Joseph Bignan of the Roxbury Crossing station on their heels, the woman was still standing by the fire box.

Judge Palsen [illegible] her testimony with [illegible] and then fined her $50.

Milton Man and Wife Hurt as Autos Crash

Mr. and Mrs. James Egan of [illegible] Adams st., Milton, were injured today when their automobile was in collision with a car operated by Norman Crane of Prince st., West Newton, at Otis st. and [illegible] rd., Milton.

Both machines were overturned and Mr. and Mrs. Egan were taken to Milton Hospital. Egan suffered from a cut over the right eye and his wife was shaken up.

NEW TAX BLANK CLEARS AUTO CONFUSION

Commissioner Long Blames Complaints on Ignorance of Recent Statute

Virtually all the confusion and irregularities of the new automobile excise tax law will be automatically [illegible] out [illegible] the 1930 registration blanks, Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long declared today.

In the 1930 blanks [illegible] questions have been inserted which must be answered by applicants who wish [illegible] giving an exact description of vehicles as well as the name and address of the owners and places where the cars are garaged.

The commissioner [illegible] much of the trouble which has arisen [illegible] the practice of the insurance [illegible] who [illegible] the blanks [illegible] necessary information.

[illegible] cities and towns [illegible] excise taxes [illegible] cars [illegible] said [illegible] not [illegible] rebates [illegible] within 60 days. [illegible] he said, [illegible] less than one per cent of the [illegible] owners have been [illegible] the law and discontent [illegible] of the protestants.

Fined $100 for False Brand on Mattress

With the prosecution of [illegible] court today of the [illegible] Eastern Bedding Co., Roxbury, it was revealed the State [illegible] and drugs has instituted a campaign against improper [illegible] of industrial products.

The company was fined $100 [illegible] tagging a mattress as of [illegible] material when, according to [illegible] inspector, [illegible] consisted of second hand [illegible] 25 per cent of grease. The complainant was Inspector [illegible] C. Mosman.

Jewish Sanatorium Auxiliary to Meet

The Jewish Tuberculosis Sanatorium Association of Massachusetts will open its activities with [illegible] party under the auspices of Auxiliary No. 1 [illegible] Mattapan at the [illegible] Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons and Thursday evening.

Mrs. Sarah Sacks [illegible] chairman and Mrs. Rose Levenson [illegible] of the committee. Plans [illegible] made for the [illegible] at the [illegible] Mrs. Emma Pearson [illegible] than Dime [illegible]

Half Time School Asked for Children

Greater education [illegible] children who are forced [illegible] was urged [illegible] Hogan of Lawrence [illegible] today before [illegible] special commission created [illegible] changes [illegible] continuation school laws.

Hogan favored [illegible] law to half-time school and half time work between the ages [illegible] 16, instead of [illegible] weeks program now in effect.

Court Must Again Decide If Bay Rum Is a Beverage

Massachusetts courts will have a second opportunity to decide whether bay rum is a beverage when John J. Hurley of Shawmut ave., South End, is tried for keeping and exposing liquor.

The liquor was bay rum and was sold to men who purchased tonic at the same time and with the knowledge of the defendant that it was to be used as a beverage, police allege.

Judge Devlin some time ago found a defendant not guilty in a case involving the sale of bay rum. It was shown the defendant did not know the bay rum was to be drunk.

GILLETT 'OUT'; BOOM BUTLER

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Despite the official silence of Senator Frederick H. Gillett Republican organization leaders throughout [illegible] are convinced that he will not [illegible] candidate to succeed [illegible] in 1930.

Acting on the [illegible] premises a movement has already been started to boom former Senator William M. Butler of New Bedford for the office. Butler in 1926 was defeated by Senator David I. Walsh by a plurality of 55,314 votes. He polled 469,989 votes to Walsh's 525,303.

From more than one source has the word come to local chieftains that Senator Gillett, who reached his 78th birthday last Wednesday, has made up his mind to retire. Several leaders who refused to be quoted have been saying at the State House within the last few days that the senior Senator had told them personally that he had made up his mind to retire.

They point out that Fuller's dislike of Washington is well known and that the job he yearns for most is another term as Governor. Fuller, they think, will bide his time until 1932, when in the natural course of events Lieut.-Gov. William S. Youngman will be up for promotion. They think that he will then enter the lists against Youngman.

[illegible] the words of a former [illegible] of the Republican State Committee, "former Governor Fuller appears to be the only Republican [illegible] State that can defeat Youngman for Governor."

YOUNG WIDOW FOUND DAZED

Mrs. Catherine Mack, 20, a widow of Cortes st., South End, was found in a hysterical condition in Chandler st. near the Hotel Arlington, early today.

When the police arrived with the ambulance, Mrs. Mack was in a semi-conscious condition.

EDISON RATES HEARING SET FOR NOV. 7

All Schedules of Company to Be Investigated by Utilities Board

The public [illegible] commission investigation of the rates of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co. of Boston will [illegible] on Thursday, November 7.

All rates of the company will be included in the [illegible] be conducted in the hearing [illegible] of the department of public utilities at the State House.

[illegible] hearing on Edison rates [illegible] an [illegible] of the commission's refusal to allow the company to [illegible] for one. Governor Allen joined in the demand for a rate investigation following the ruling which had an adverse effect on Boston Edison in the [illegible] market.

The commission is acting partly on the petition of Wycliffe C. Marshall, filed on behalf of 24 Watertown customers of the company, and partly on its own initiative. The Marshall petition called for an investigation of domestic rates only, but the inquiry is broadened to include all rates of utility.

Two days ago Councilor Motley requested Mayor Nichols to assign the corporation counsel to represent the Boston public.

Luncheon to Aid Temple Israel

Appearance of stage stars and an up-to-the-minute style show with living models are two of the features planned for the second annual theatrical luncheon to be given at the Cocoanut Grove, Tuesday, at 1 p. m., the proceeds of which will be devoted to sisterhood activities of Temple Israel. A large committee is headed by Mrs. Edward Rose. There will be special music by Jacques Renard's orchestra, with Mickie Alpert acting as master of ceremonies. Mrs. Julius Kallman of 103 Beacon st., Brookline, is handling the reservation list.

GIRLS FLEE CRASH

[illegible]

They are Joseph Barry, [illegible], married, of Summer st., Everett. Lacerations and cuts about the head and face and arms.

John Furlong, [illegible], single, of Gainsboro st., Back Bay. Contusions and abrasions of the back and head.

According to the police of the City sq. station a sedan, [illegible] to have been operated by Barry and containing Furlong and two women, was moving across the High bridge. On the Charlestown side, near the draw bridge, repairs are being made on the right side of the bridge.

Evidently the operator of the machine did not see the two wooden horses on which were two red lanterns and the machine crashed through the wooden horse. The car leaped over the sidewalk and against the guard rail of the bridge.

8th Larceny Laid to Garage Man

An additional charge of larceny, making eight in all, was filed today against Edward True, Quincy Point garage man, who disappeared before notes totaling $5000, which he had given in exchange for used cars, came due.

The complainant was [illegible] Purpola of Weymouth, who was given a note for $750 for his car left in care of True and could find neither True nor the car on October 10 when the note fell due.

True is a former Revere man. Lieut. George Fall [illegible] is in charge of the investigation into the manipulations by which he is alleged to have defrauded at least eight automobile owners.

Raiders Seize Man and $2000 in Rum

A large crowd looked on today while police from the East Cambridge station, led by Capt. Timothy F. Leahy, raided a house in Webster st. and seized two wagon loads of beer, moonshine and empty glasses.

With Sergt. McCarthy and Officers McManus, Collins, Kelly and O'Neil, Capt. Leahy forced his way into the house and took into custody John H. Gatey, 28, against whom charges will be preferred later.

The liquor was said to be valued at $2000.

Al Jolson

[illegible] Cantor Yoelson's antipathy to the theater must have been further excited by his son's love for it, for the latter, when still a lad, [illegible] to get a part in Israel Zangwill's "Children of the Ghetto."

Vaudeville experience followed. It was during this period that the idea of using burnt cork was suggested by a negro dresser.

Jolson for years spurned the [illegible] motion picture producers but was finally won over by Warner Bros., appearing for them in the first great special production "The Jazz Singer," [illegible] which broke records all over the country. This was followed by the even greater success of "The Singing Fool." Now [illegible] "Say It With Songs."

THEY'LL WATCH STAR MAKE HIS PICTURE

By LOUELLA O PARSONS

LOS ANGELES [illegible]

[illegible]

M. Chevalier [illegible] what American [illegible] "Love Parade" [illegible] everywhere as a complete knockout.

M. Chevalier proved to the [illegible] even before [illegible] "The Love Parade" [illegible] was a fine actor. His personality [illegible] American motion picture [illegible] stood out like a [illegible] even though the story was inferior [illegible] up at the box office and [illegible] after [illegible]

Louella O. Parsons

Maurice Chevalier will [illegible] to Hollywood to begin work on "[illegible]ount on Parade." Later [illegible] will go to New York to [illegible] "The Big Pond," adapted from the stage play.

* * *

GRANT WITHERS, Hollywood's [illegible] acknowledged sheik, [illegible] dyed his hair red not to [illegible] Loretta Young, for whom [illegible] has an admitted admiration [illegible] who has ditto for him, but [illegible] is dyeing it in the cause of [illegible] art. He has been signed by First National for the lead opposite Corinne Griffith in "Back [illegible]," a Fannie Hurst novel which was purchased for her from Cosmopolitan Pictures.

I cannot think of any young [illegible] as a Don Juan as Mr. Withers. He may not [illegible] from [illegible] most of them would be [illegible] to be called Don Juan to the end of the chapter.

But the gods certainly do tell [illegible] Mr. Withers [illegible] First National is probably making the picture in color else he wouldn't have had to dye his locks red, now would he, I ask you.

* * *

THE decorative Constance Bennett, who has added so much to the Hollywood parties [illegible] from New York [illegible] week on the Home [illegible] has a little business [illegible] in Paris [illegible] divorce decree from Phil Plant, and I suspect even in Paris a girl must be on the spot to get the necessary legal documents.

She is expected to go to First National when she returns from Europe. Another traveler is Edna Murphy, who answers to [illegible] in private life. Edna is going to [illegible] New York [illegible] a treat. She leaves on a vacation this week and she hasn't [illegible] they will all be bragging they knew her when.

* * *

MARGIE (BABE) KANE, second edition of the Kanes to descend upon Hollywood, may be located on the United Artists lot where she is playing a role in "The Champ" for Fanny Brice. I saw the other Kane, by name Helen, on Elsie Janis' set and I wondered how she and the camera get along. She is so plump that she would have been a great success in the day of Pauline Hall and Lillian Russell. Her babyish voice is certainly incongruous with her new portly figure. Hollywood seems to add weight to all these girls. It puts pounds and pounds on them.

THIS seems to be the open season for buying novels and plays. We used to think that the movies greedily gobbled up novels and plays, but we never saw anything until the talkies came upon us. Now a book is hardly out of the press before it is purchased. "The Stepchildren of the Moon," one of last year's best sellers, by Fulton Cursler, has been purchased by William Le Baron.

The stage version of "Stepchildren of the Moon" was called "All the King's Men" and it created [illegible] Richard Dix [illegible] been purchased [illegible]

LITTLE [illegible] back in Hollywood again. Eddie, you will remember, is the comedian who toured the country for years in vaudeville [illegible] special [illegible] under the [illegible] English [illegible]

[illegible] a [illegible] for [illegible] Why not some of [illegible] little [illegible] that is what [illegible] plans to have Mr. [illegible]

* * *

I AM mighty glad that Pat O'Malley has been signed by somebody. He is one of my favorite Irishmen on the screen. I hope his wife won't object to this little compliment. Anyway, he has been signed by Warner Brothers for a Vitaphone playlet called "The People Versus."

Bryan Foy will direct, and I am happy to say that this gives Pat a chance to play a role similar to the one he portrayed in "Alibi." He is to be a district attorney. Now, almost anyone, Irish or otherwise, would like to be a district attorney. [illegible] is always [illegible]

Keith-Albee Bill

"The Honey Girl Minstrels" [illegible] which will comprise the entire vaudeville part of the Keith-Albee next week is billed as follows: 5 Honeys, with Jesse Flynn, Waxman's Honey Girl Band, Sophie Bennett and Fannie Fenwick, "Babe" [illegible] Harrigan Sisters [illegible] Marietta Murphy and 12 Honey Girl Steppers.

LILA LEE

NOVEL CYCLE BY SOPRANO

By MOSES SMITH

ELEANOR MARUM [illegible] at Jordan Hall [illegible] affair [illegible] most performers [illegible] of the gifted Miss Marum [illegible] with the exception [illegible] the last group [illegible] excellence.

Throughout the entire program Miss Marum displayed [illegible] artistry and musicianship. Such intensity of concentration and conviction to the delivery of a song, whatever the language, is rare in a young singer.

The more the pity that such an essentially dramatic temperament as hers should be mated to a light, lyric voice. This voice is of pleasing quality, and was well used within its natural limitations. But in attempting to rise to the heights of the German Romanticists, the French Impressionists or to the Respighi of "Nebbie," Miss Marum was led inevitably to harshen her voice to make it rasp.

For all that, this concert was distinctly enjoyable. Miss Marum made additional contributions not only in the way of translations for the word-book of the program but, also, as composer of six of the songs.

Ford Names Village After Boyhood Home

Detroit, Oct. 18—The historical village, which Henry Ford has created near his estate at Dearborn, just outside of Detroit, is to be named Greenfield, taking the name of the little country village the automobile manufacturer and Mrs. Ford knew in their youth.

The original Greenfield was wiped out by the expansion of the Detroit metropolitan area.

Mr. Ford was quoted as saying [illegible] practical the new village [illegible] historical buildings [illegible] from many places will be incorporated with self government.

RADICAL CHANGES IN HARVARD LINEUP

AMERICAN SPORTS SECTION

FOR SPORTS—CALL LIBERTY 4000 FRIDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1929 FOR SPORTS—CALL LIBERTY 4000

Bob Shawkey Succeeds Huggins as Yankee Pilot

SHIFTS IN HARVARD LINEUP

DUE to the fact that Bus Talbot will not be in the Harvard lineup against Army tomorrow, Coach Arnold Horween announced last minute radical changes in the Crimson eleven, whereby Capt. Jim Barrett will play right guard and [illegible] of the Crimson.

[illegible] to Harvard dopesters. Barrett has been one of the few linesmen on the Harvard team who has up to this time never been tried in any other position except his regular berth at left tackle.

And in the same way, while Bill [illegible] from right guard to right tackle and back again, no one expected that the Milton giant could be made equally at home on the left side of the Harvard line.

Horween qualified his startling lineup somewhat when he made it clear that Barrett would play right guard only on the offense and that Ticknor would also only be a middleman when the Crimson had the ball.

Both will be in their regular berths when Harvard is on the defense. Barrett is picked to stop most plays that come his way in masterly fashion when the Cadets test the Crimson line.

Now that the starting eleven has been officially announced, the problem of what Horween intended to do about the tackle and guard situation is answered. All week the question hung fire.

Bus Talbot was the occupant of the much disputed guard position last Monday, and on Tuesday the assignment was turned over to Ginman. Next Bill Ticknor moved into the spot in the Harvard line, Ginman and Talbot both going to the B team.

Talbot still has a chance to get in the game tomorrow as his bruises which kept him out of the Team A lineup until it was too late have healed.

ARMY AT STADIUM

The Army squad of 44 men and a complement of coaches arrive in the Stadium today to hold their first practice session. The future officers appeared to be in the pink of condition, and are on their toes to get Harvard tomorrow.

Though this team makes up one of the strongest aggregations in the East, Harvard is confident that they can take the Caydets' measure for a trimming. Despite the loss of Harper, Levin and Jim Douglas, the Cambridge club still thinks they have enough "moxie" to turn back the Army.

The opening kickoff comes at 2:30 this week instead of 3 p. m., giving the teams time enough to settle their differences before the moon rises.

The officials who have been appointed to see that things go right or not at all are Dr. Eddie O'Brien of Tufts, referee, John E. Ingersoll, Dartmouth, umpire; Hugh McGrath, Boston College, head linesman, and J. E. Keegan, Pittsfield, field judge.

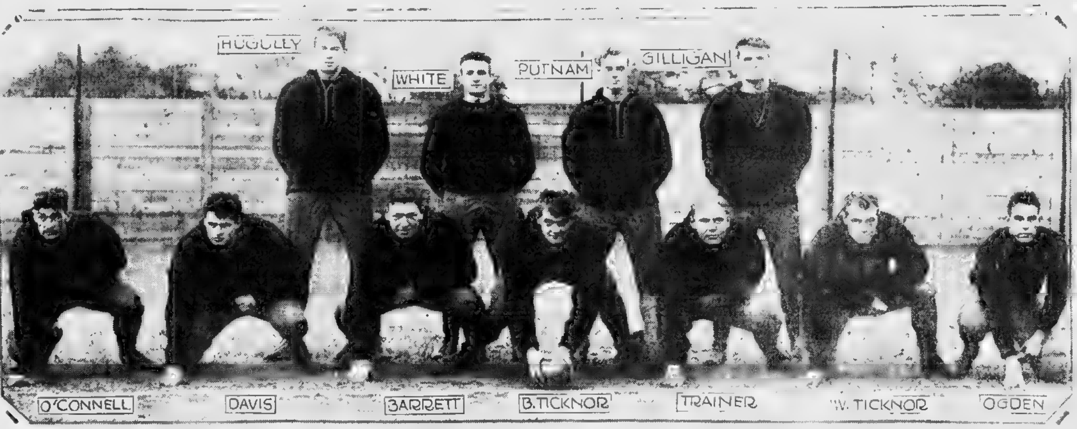
MEN OF HARVARD IN BATTLE ARRAY FOR WAR WITH SOLDIER ELEVEN



'SALEM TRADE' TO CONTINUE

Harold Burgess, the youthful perpetrator of the Salem Trade School football hoax, is undaunted by the sudden change in the fortunes of his gridiron aggregation which was exposed when the star halfback of the outfit, Michael Iwanicki, demanded payment for his services.

Burgess claims to have contracts to play football games with Winthrop and Chelsea high schools in 1930, and also states that Winthrop has consented to meet "Salem Trade" in basketball this winter.

"Salem Trade" will be continued as an amateur athletic organization, according to Burgess. The present group of youths who represent the ficticious school will not be included in the makeup of future Salem Trade teams, however. Burgess claims that he "made" Iwanicki and that the latter is ungrateful.

The schools having football games scheduled with "Salem Trade" this season have not notified Burgess that they are canceling such contests.

An average of $23.50 was made on each of the 18 or 20 athletic contests in which "Salem Trade" has participated during the past six years, according to Burgess' statement.

The only rewards the players were to have had for their gridiron labors were athletic sweaters and a post-season trip. The youths on the team were content with this arrangement until last Tuesday, when a group of 13 or 14 players of the 18 in the squad, headed by Iwanicki, demanded a cut on the proceeds of the Rogers high game at Newport, R. I., last Saturday.

Burgess was indignant at the requests of his charges and reminded them in no uncertain terms that they were amateurs. Playing for sweaters and the vague hope of a post-season trip did not satisfy the players, hence the exposure.

"Salem Trade's" fair name may be temporarily besmirched, but Harold Burgess, the youthful master-mind of the scheme, will continue to carry on.

"Know and Keep Golf Rules," Says Champ

By HORTON SMITH

North-South and French Professional Champion

RECENTLY I picked up a little book on golf that I fear is least read of all golf books. It has to do with the rules of the game. For this reason it is not over popular with the rank and file of golfers.

Surely more books of this description have been printed than that of any other golf subject, yet I doubt if one golfer in twenty could produce one on short notice.

As a matter of fact, any player who makes a practice of carrying around a rule book for ready reference is not a popular opponent or partner and instead of being regarded as a thoughtful and valuable asset to any foursome he is looked upon with a little suspicion.

Other members of the foursome regard him as one too willing to take advantage of technicalities.

THE good fellow in golf is the one willing to turn his back or to admit that he did not see a rule broken, or that even worse, he is not familiar with the rules and is not sure whether it is an infringement or not.

In the foreword of this little book that I chanced to pick up I read the following:

"There are no rules. Those that are you shall interpret in favor of the other fellow." It went on to say: "These are beautiful thoughts, but they are much more for ornament than for use. In these days of strenuous competition golfers must observe rules."

NOW that competition is heavier than ever before all over the country and all competitions, whether it is match or medal play, should in all fairness to your opponent, or your partner or the other competitors, be played in strict compliance with every rule in golf, it is well that golfers observe the rules and etiquette of the game closely.

After winning a prize in a medal play competition can you say to yourself: Did I win this honestly? Am I entitled to this prize, or did I break one of the rules? Should I have been disqualified?

IN medal competition the golfer should always remember that he is playing against the entire field and not his partner alone.

Should the latter be willing to overlook some small technicality this does not excuse him from making a direct accounting to the other players. For this reason a rule was formed making the partner who overlooked a broken rule just as guilty as the perpetrator.

The rule most usually broken is the one where a player moves his ball, always without intent, but a stroke nevertheless and should be counted as such. If a player picks up a piece of grass or a twig and the ball moves sufficiently to take a new position, it is a stroke.

A well-known player recently confessed ignorance on this point, claiming that he always thought that the ball had to make a complete revolution. Many golfers have the habit of addressing the ball so closely that it is apt to be put in motion. This is frequently done on the putting green. Unless the player himself calls attention to the mistake the chances are that it will pass unnoticed.

ANOTHER place where the rules of golf are broken frequently is in sand traps or recognized hazards. If one should touch his club to the road or path in what is known as soling the club the penalty is the loss of the hole in match play and two strokes in medal play.

When the ball is being played out of a sand trap the same penalty is incurred if the player touches the sand in addressing it or touches it accidentally in the back swing. A penalty is also invoked if the player hits the ball but fails to get out of the trap and then smooths out the club marks in the trap. Here is a case where the golfer observes the etiquette of the game yet incurs a penalty at the same time.

FRANK SLAVIN PASSES AWAY

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 18 (AP)—One of the last links connecting present day pugilism with the era of John L. Sullivan and other fighters of the bare knuckle school has been broken with the death here of Frank Slavin.

A colorful figure, Slavin, who fought as a professional for more than 20 years, fell under the spell of the Yukon during the gold stampede of 1898 and wound up the spectacular side of his career with an enlistment in the Canadian army during the World War when he was 54 years old.

Slavin died in a hospital here yesterday after an illness of more than a year.

Born Sydney Cornstalk in Maitland, New South Wales, January 5, 1862, Slavin took up boxing as a form of amusement while he was working in a mining camp in Australia. He won the amateur heavyweight championship and turned professional more or less by accident. In a Queensland bar-room he encountered Martin Powers, a local champion, who [illegible] the amateur until Slavin offered to fight him then and there.

So great was the interest, however, that the fight was staged at a race track for a purse. Slavin beat Powers in 13 minutes, under prize ring rules.

RAPID RISE

Slavin's rise was rapid. In 1888 Martin Costello of the United States, who had lasted five rounds with Sullivan, visited Australia and Slavin was picked to uphold the prestige of that country against the invader. Costello was knocked out in seven rounds.

Slavin then went to England [illegible] still later came to the United States meeting among [illegible] Smith, British champion, [illegible] McAuliffe of Detroit; Peter Jackson, Jim Hall, Bob Armstrong, Jake Kilrain and Frank Craig, the "Harlem coffee cooler." Slavin and Sullivan never met in the ring. Each charged the other with evading a fight.

Slavin was in San Francisco when news of the gold strike in the Klondike came. He immediately went to the Yukon, where he remained for many years. While there he met Frank Gotch, the heavyweight wrestling champion. Gotch thought he could box and he agreed not to use wrestling tactics. After Slavin had given him a bad battering, however, Gotch, infuriated, lifted the Australian in his arms and tossed him out of the ring.

FOUGHT IN TRENCHES

Slavin later settled in Victoria, B. C. In 1915 he enlisted in the [illegible]th Western Scots, Canadian Expeditionary Forces, and fought in the trenches. He was 54 years old at the time but his fine physical condition, together with a dyed mustache and close-clipped hair, enabled him to pass the recruiting officers.

He was given his honorable discharge at Victoria and then prospected for several years.

Slavin's proudest boast was his happy married life. He celebrated his 34th wedding anniversary in 1928. He was the father of three daughters and a son, the latter being killed in action in France.

B. U. Expects to Beat Worcester Tech

BOSTON UNIVERSITY will present its strongest backfield combination of the season when the Terriers line up against Worcester Tech at Nickerson Field tomorrow and as [illegible] turn back the invaders from the [illegible] by a large score.

Not since the opening game of the season with West Point has B. U. been able to put its best ball carriers all on the field at the same time and for that reason the Terrier backfield has lacked the drive and [illegible] which it has begun to develop during the past week.

Against New Hampshire two weeks ago [illegible] the Jewish holydays [illegible] the B. U. backfield to such an extent that only one regular, Club Walke, was in his customary position.

In the Vermont game last week Walke was on the sidelines at the start of the contest but got in shortly before the first half ended. The appearance of Walke in the last game was the first time in a month that every regular back was back in harness again and for the first time this fall the team showed a good offense and succeeded in running up 26 points against the Catamounts.

FLETCHER REFUSES POST

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (AP)—[illegible] Bob Shawkey [illegible], has [illegible] of the New York Yankees [illegible] weeks ago [illegible] Miller J. Huggins.

[illegible] He signed a one-year contract to manage the club several days ago but announcement was withheld by Col. Jacob Ruppert, club president, until yesterday. Shawkey was in Quebec on a hunting trip.

Shawkey's selection surprised the experts, who had expected either Arthur Fletcher, Yankee coach, or [illegible] Connery, president of the St. Paul club of the American Association would be named to the post. It turned out that Fletcher had been offered the job but had declined it, [illegible] saying he did not want to manage the Yankees or any other club.

The offer then was made to and accepted by Shawkey. Fletcher will continue to coach the team.

Col. Ruppert said the new manager had been selected solely on the basis of advice given some time ago by Huggins. Some five years ago, Col. Ruppert said, he and Huggins had discussed a possible successor to Huggins in the event of his retirement or disability.

Huggins recommended Fletcher, then manager of the Philadelphia Nationals, and Fletcher later came to the club as coach with the idea of club officials that he would carry on should Huggins have to quit.

After Shawkey's days as an active player were over Huggins advised his addition to the payroll as a coach, especially of pitchers. Bob the Gob was Huggins' second choice as his successor.

GREAT ARRAY OF HORSES AT GARDEN

The greatest array of horses that [illegible] ever exhibited in New England [illegible] will be on hand for the Boston Horse Show in the Boston Garden, October 30 to November 2.

These entries, including the foremost stables in the country, from the blue grass country of Kentucky to the White mountains of New Hampshire, many of which will be East for the first time, have far exceeded the expectations of the local management.

The Boston Horse Show officials were faced with a gigantic task in building from the ground up a show, once of national importance, which has not been held since 1908, the date of the last show in Mechanics building.

The Boston management would have been delighted to receive the entries of a half a dozen stables never before seen in New England, but more than twice that number has been received.

Prominent in the list are the entries of George J. Peak and Son, Chicago; Nawbeek Farm, P[illegible] Pa.; Green Valley Stables, Sewickley, Pa.; Dr. D. A. Orth, Chicago; R. S. McLaughlin, Oshawa, Ont.; G. Berry Beaumont, Bryn Mawr, Pa.; Marion Hickory Mountain Stables, Barbourville, Ky.; Mrs. Oliver M. Kaufman, Pittsburgh; Mrs. Ann W. Humphrey, Louisville, Ky., and the Good Time Stable of Goshen, N. Y.

Added to the list of formidable visiting stables are [illegible] Farms of [illegible] Pa.; The [illegible] Hickory Farm of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Moore, Morristown, N. J.; O. B. [illegible] Farm [illegible] N. H.; [illegible] Farm, [illegible] N. Y.; [illegible] Thompson, Chicago; [illegible] Stables of [illegible] B. Wick, Cleveland; [illegible] Farm of William H. Vanderbilt, Newport, R. I., and [illegible] How [illegible] of Port Chester, N. Y.

E. J. Kaufmann of Pittsburgh, P[illegible] Fowler of [illegible] Pa., and Mr. [illegible] Mrs. Carl H. Providence, R. I.—Brown will have a hard time to keep Yale from spotting a pass or kick. [illegible] Fogarty, Brown's only good passer, is unable to kick on account of a hurt foot, while Edwards, who is filling the punting assignment, finds it necessary to remove his headgear before booting one.

Princeton—Three regulars will be missing from the Princeton line when the Tigers take the field against Cornell Saturday. Capt. Jack Whyte will be kept out of his third game of the year by injuries and Moore and Mestres have joined him on the sidelines.

MEN'S STORE

This man's suit won't be wrinkled when he stands up—

THE first thing the men say when we show them a suit is, "How much?" and invariably the second thing is, "How does this suit hold its press?" Even a custom-made suit, if it's made of a very soft fabric, will begin to look baggy after you wear it a couple of days . . . which is just another way of saying that we have plenty of hard finished worsted suits that will hold a press.

Men's suits, tuxedos and topcoats, $22.50

A regular line of suits, and topcoats at $22.50 is a comparatively new thing with us . . . In fact last March was the first time that we had sold suits at that price, except, of course, at stocktaking and similar sales. The reason? Until last Spring we had not been able to get the type of suits that we wanted and could sell regularly for $22.50. It was not until we were able to combine with 13 other large stores in buying the clothes that we were able to get suits and topcoats that we were really proud of. The materials are exceptional . . . the tailoring, while not as distinctive as in higher price suits, is machine sewn, thus allowing us to sell these suits and topcoats at $22.50.

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

BOTH TEAMS STRONG ON OFFENSE

By RALPH GILROY.

Former All American Princeton Back

WITH the opening kickoff only 24 hours away [illegible] and [illegible] Harvard and the Army [illegible] Stadium.

At [illegible] Coach Horween will probably [illegible] sion that if Capt. [illegible] Barrett wins the pregame toss [illegible] Harvard should kick off to the Cadets.

Horween will remember the disaster caused by Harper's fumble on the Harvard 20-yard line on the play following the Army kick off last year. The Cadet eleven recovered the ball and converted the Harvard error into a West Point touchdown before the old football game was two minutes old.

That break just about ruined the Crimson morale and put the old "pep" in the Army eleven. It is a well-known fact that at the start of a football game the halfbacks carrying the pigskin are prone to fumble when tackled hard until they have gotten the "feel" of the ball.

Many coaches, therefore, think it the better part of strategy, when given the choice, to kick off to the opponents. Coach Horween will probably give the cadets the chance to fumble the pigskin at the start of the game.

CAGLE FEARED.

On the other hand, if the Crimson kicks off to the Army eleven, you can be sure that the Crimson mentor will instruct his kicker to boot that ball away from the old giant Cagle. For "Chris" has that habit of running back those kick-offs for long gains and sometimes for touchdowns.

It seems likely that the Crimson coaches would like to see the Army eleven deep in their own territory after receiving the opening kick-off, where, with the big Crimson line fresh and strong, the Cadets would be forced to kick, and Harvard would put the ball in play at midfield and then go to work on her offense.

Whether this plan will work out that way is another guess, but you can bet your last dollar, brother, that the strategists over in Cambridge, Horween, Jimmy Knox and the rest, are just getting headaches going over such situations.

Then, how to play Capt. Cagle most effectively is bothering them. The Harvard dope artists are bound to get a lot of nightmares in shaping a defense to stop this brilliant back. Undoubtedly, the Harvard coaches have schooled their linemen to drive through the Army line as fast as they can get through to nail Cagle before he can get up his speed or to hurry those Cagle aerials.

But, you know, the Army captain is just that versatile that he refuses to be hurried when he is throwing that pigskin to one of his own players. Cagle dodges and twists away from those in charging linemen and sometimes runs half way across the field and back again before he lets that ball fly.

Coach "Biff" Jones of the Army eleven, who personally witnessed the Harvard-New Hampshire game last Saturday, is going to take on a few gray hairs as he tries to dope a defense for the Horween running and lateral passing game. Last year the West Point mentor was successful in stopping the Harvard laterals by pulling his defensive wing backs close to the line so that they could tackle the lateral receiver just as he caught the ball.

LITTLE DECEPTION

Jones was able to do this because the Harvard forward passing game was practically nil. This is another year, as the boys say, and the Army coach has to give consideration to the Crimson aerial game in framing his defense. If Jones pulls his halfbacks up close tomorrow, watch the Harvard air game work. The West Point coach will probably keep his wing defensive backs in their usual positions ten yards from the scrimmage line, and make his wingmen cover the outside halfback who is on the receiving end of the laterals. That will drive the ball carrier inside the end and give the cadet fullback a crack at him. But don't think for a minute that the Harvard running game won't pick up a lot of yardage through use of the lateral as a threat.

And if Harvard starts to gain a lot of yardage through running, the Cadet defensive backs will be forced to move in to bolster up their rush line and then the Crimson aerials should go. The "Biff" Jones offense as put on by the Cadets last fall at the Stadium consisted of simple off-tackle cut backs, and end runs and passes, mainly from a kick formation.

In any case, the Harvard offense is varied enough to keep the opposition on their toes at all times, and with a wealth of fast powerful linemen, and two sets of fleet backs, the Horween eleven should grind out a lot of yardage over that Stadium turf tomorrow.

On the other hand, if Cagle is anywhere near up to his last year form, the Cadets are bound to score. This Harvard-Army game tomorrow should develop into a battle of scores.

Club Owners Have Lost News Sense

By JOE CASHMAN

ORGANIZED baseball has chosen a new psychological moment for making important announcements. [illegible] magnates used to wait until mid-winter, when the fans are hungry for diamond gossip, to spring sensations. Now [illegible] at the height of the football season.

Since the close of the major league races 10 days ago, Bob Shawkey has been appointed manager of the Yankees, Bill McKechnie has quit the Cards to become boss of the Braves, Dan Howley has resigned from the Browns to direct the Reds, Donie Bush has been named White Sox pilot and Bill Killefer has been promoted to the leadership of the Browns.

And Harry Heilmann and Bob Meusel, two of the best hitters in the American League for the past decade, have been waived out of the circuit and sold to the Reds.

Plenty of fodder for the hot stove gang in each of these announcements, but the boys and girls are too busy following the doings of their grid heroes these days to think about anything else, and when they get to sitting around the fireside they will have forgotten all about these baseball changes.

BE that as it may, all these shifts should cause plenty of interest and discussion when another Springs rolls around.

At least three of the five new managers, if they are to be judged on past performances, are far superior to their predecessors and their teams should show considerable improvement next year.

Howley took over a hopeless outfit in St. Louis and, after one year of experimenting, showed up with a first division club.

The team he will get in Cincinnati isn't a world beater or anything like it, but it is far better than were the Browns when the Sage of Weymouth first went to the Mound City.

If Daniel has as much luck in Cincinnati as he did in St. Louis and Heilmann and Meusel prove as valuable acquisitions as did such players as Blue, Manush and O'Rourke when they became Howleymen, the Reds should be serious pennant contenders before very long.

Meusel and Heilmann have been playing big league ball for a good many years. Each has almost played his string out. But every club in the American League has worse outfielders and it is a mystery why these two sluggers were allowed to go to the National League when they could have been bought for $7500 each.

More than one American League manager is likely to regret having let them escape after they have played under Howley for a while.

Bush should do well with the White Sox. There are several very promising players on the Windy City roster. All they need is a hard-boiled boss to make them a mighty [illegible] outfit. Bush is as hard-boiled as they make 'em. They'll play for him or he'll know why. If he is given a free rein the White Sox are going to be a good team.

McKECHNIE will have every chance in the world to make good here. He faces a tough task, but if he has the ability he certainly ought to be able to prove it in a few years.

There is no doubt he can run a good team. Whether he can build up a weak aggregation is a question that none can answer.

The appointment of Shawkey, made public yesterday, is a distinct surprise. The majority believed Art Fletcher would get the job. Nobody will envy the new and inexperienced Yanks' boss his berth. He will be stepping into the shoes of the late miracle pilot, Miller Huggins, winner of six pennants in eight years, and will be taking over a team that is on the down grade and descending rapidly. He can't possibly do as well as Huggins for some time, if ever, and will have to stand plenty of undeserved abuse.

Bill Killefer is also in a tough spot in St. Louis, for he isn't likely to prove any more successful than Howley. It doesn't make so much difference in his case, however, for if he won a series of pennants and world's championships he wouldn't satisfy the St. Louis fans.

THE only clubs now without a manager for next year are the Red Sox and Cardinals.

Bob Quinn has never even intimated that Bill Carrigan might not be back at Fenway but the Lewiston pilot's contract, which, we understand, has always been a verbal one, expired at the close of the season, so the natives are really without a boss.

It is likely that Carrigan will return but the smart Mr. Quinn has enough sense to know that the best time to make public the name of the Sox pilot for 1930 is along about Christmas time. Not now.

Fittons Sign Up Ex-Harvard Star

Realizing the stiff opposition that faces them Sunday when they line up against the strong undefeated Whitman A. A. team at Fort Banks, Winthrop, the management of the Fitton football team has secured the services of Frank Pickett, regular end for Harvard last year.

FLATLEY SAYS

WE get the real sizeup of Harvard [illegible]

[illegible] Harvard [illegible] Harvard should [illegible] the [illegible] will be over. [illegible] back [illegible] Christian [illegible] have something [illegible] Until Capt. Jim [illegible] young men have [illegible] rauding Christian, the [illegible] remain in abeyance.

The Army isn't as [illegible] was a year ago. [illegible] have been sent off [illegible] places. While Cagle [illegible] linger around, though [illegible] is not going to be a [illegible] any of them.

HARVARD might have beaten both Penn and Army a year ago, had there been [illegible] resembling a forward [illegible] Crimson assault. [illegible] the secondaries of [illegible] played up close, and [illegible] lateral pass. That play, developed by Harvard to a much finer point than anywhere else, is the best offensive of [illegible] football [illegible] backed up by a forward threat that can keep the [illegible] back.

Two preparatory games have seen Harvard throwing and completing forwards. Which augurs great things as the team heads into the toughest schedule that ever a Cambridge team [illegible] There isn't a [illegible] down to the finish.

THIS [illegible]

THERE is a laugh in the case of the school that [illegible] in the imagination of [illegible] young promoter who [illegible] football. The so-called [illegible] sport will deplore the [illegible] incident no little. The [illegible] "we-drifting" birds [illegible] to get over the shock.

But no harm was [illegible] A lot of kids had a lot of [illegible] don't collect enough [illegible] start a scandal, and [illegible] showed some of the chaps who think they run the athletic universe that good bricks [illegible] so.

DAN HOWLEY, good baseball manager, is picking up all the venerable ivory he can find for his Cincinnati team. Dan knows his onions. Out in Cincy, results only count. Daniel, if he can get a winning team his first year, will be a hero with the burgomasters. If he has a loser he'll get the axe. Good material in Cincy and Dan knows it. His scheme is to pack a few fading stars, who have a year or so left. If it works, he will have several years in which to rebuild. The American League lost a real leader when Dan got away. Perhaps it is for the [illegible] May help in the near future to restore the balance of strength between the big leagues.

CHARLIE RIGLER, u. pire, collected a trick knee a year ago. It threatened to put him out of business, which was bad. He had to give up golf, which was worse, from his point of view. He spent plenty seeing specialists and hospitals. But nothing could be done [illegible] The smart boys said the [illegible] was chronic. We saw [illegible] morning during the series with a golf bag on his [illegible] hustling toward [illegible] We asked him about [illegible] It's okay [illegible] chirped [illegible] [illegible] for 10 minutes [illegible] good as new." There may be a moral [illegible]

EDDIE MACK says the Cubs were just another heavyweight flop—Tom Niland chirps that he will handle boxing without gloves—Mickey Cochrane, hero of the series, will choke up when he [illegible] on the Old Howard stage. Fred Doherty insists that Old Howard won the serious for the Macks. Salem Trade motto, All play and no work make Jack a healthy boy—they found out, too, that only three out of 36 Coney Island life guards could swim—hope for Harvard's sake the Army mule isn't as tough as the Athletic mule—the skating season starts Saturday, under the Stadium.

Mazzola Acquitted on Murder Charge

[illegible], Oct. 18.—After deliberating two hours and 14 minutes a jury acquitted Thomas Mazzola [illegible] charged with the murder of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Rosina Lorella.

Mrs. Lorella was found dead at Mazzola's home on the morning of January 3 last year. During the trial, which began last week, the State showed that Mrs. Lorella had been strangled to death and that the jets of a gas stove had been opened to give her death the appearance of accidental asphyxiation.

The measure would amend the [illegible] which permits a similar embargo to be placed against shipments to Mexico, Central America and China. It is a modification of a resolution approved by Secretary Kellogg at hearings before the House foreign affairs committee at the last session of Congress.

WELL-KEPT HANDS A GREAT AID TO BEAUTY

Woman's Face Not Her Only Charm, Says Expert

By MARIA JERITZA

MANY a woman forgets, in giving her hands casual and superficial attention and grooming that she may be judged and approved or condemned by the attractiveness of [illegible] hands and fingernails.

Maria Jeritza

The day is past when a woman's face is her one claim to prettiness and distinction. The entire body must pass the beauty test nowadays, and that includes every feature of the body, but most particularly the hands.

That you are obliged to immerse your hands long hours in hot water, that you handle carbon paper in your office job, that you love to go into your flower garden and pull up weeds and transplant your loved blossoms—none of these excuses will pass muster if your hands are rough and red and your nails have suspicious dark rims. For, alas, we are judged always by first impressions except in case of tried friendship. And badly groomed hands will be taken for evidence of a disorderly disposition and lack of cleanliness. However, the modern woman is resourceful and capable and [illegible] can and does keep her [illegible]

There [illegible] [illegible] as to what type of bracelets and rings will look best on your particular type of hand. Prominent veins are [illegible] due to poor circulation. [illegible] up the health together with [illegible] gymnastics, will in that case firm the tissue and make the veins seem less conspicuous.

Keep a bottle of your favorite hand-lotion near your office desk or on the kitchen shelf where you can apply it every time you wash your hands or immerse them in water. Have a small box containing an orangewood stick and a small roll of absorbent cotton near by also. Wrapping a bit of cotton about the tip of the orange-wood stick, clean under your nail tips.

If you make a practice of this instant devoted to clean nail-tips every time you wash your hands, you can easily keep them clear of grime and dirt, for dirt is easy to remove when softened by water.

Have another bottle of hand lotion and another orangewood stick with absorbent cotton, on your bathroom toilet shelf, for use after your morning and evening baths.

In applying this lotion, rub it well into the cuticle and also into your wrists and knuckles, with the movements you use in washing your hands.

At the finger-tips are most delicate, sensitive nerves, including the nerves of touch. Protect them by letting the nails grow long enough to reach and top your finger-tips. [illegible] some women fidget with their fingers or are "helpless" [illegible] their hands is that they do not control these finger-tip nerves. Luscious Grape Recipes

BEFORE the season for the luscious Iroquois (Concord) grapes is over, to make the most of this luscious variety of the grape family, which is so especially well adapted to the making of grape juice, jam, conserve, butter, ketchup, etc. Even grape mince meat may be made.

Martha Lee

I may not have room for all the grape recipes today, but if you will drop me a line, I will be glad to send you others besides the ones you find here.

GRAPE CONSERVE

- 1 pt. jar canned grapes (1 lb. sugar to 6 lbs. grapes used in canning).
- ¾ c. grape syrup.
- 1 orange (shredded).
- ¼ c. raisins.
- 1 c. pecans.

Mash grapes, orange and raisins, add syrup, and cook until thick and transparent. Put nuts into mixture five minutes before removing from the fire. If a thermometer is used cook the conserve to 103 degrees centigrade. Pack hot into sterilized jars and seal immediately. Process pint jars for 30 minutes at 180 degrees F. in a water-bath.

GRAPE BUTTER

Select ripe grapes, wash, crush and separate skins from pulp, discarding one-half of the skins. Steam or stew the pulp and juice until the seeds can be easily removed by pressing the soft pulp with juice through a colander. Cook the skins in the water until tender and cut into thin strips or chop. Add sugar to the pulp and juice and cook until thick and of a jelly-like consistency. Stir frequently while cooking to avoid burning. Five minutes before removing from the fire the softened chopped grape hulls may be added if desired. Pack hot into hot jars and seal immediately.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

In washing cut glass a squeeze of lemon juice in the water makes it sparkle brilliantly. It will also bring discolored brown shoes back to their original color. Fresh ink-stains and fruit juice can be removed from silk or cotton by sprinkling a pinch of salt on the mark and then squeezing lemon over it.

Theater Party Etiquette

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am a young woman and I wish to give a small theater party to some of my friends, some of whom are gentlemen. Will you kindly inform me if it is correct for me to present the tickets at the door of the theater, and how we should proceed down the aisle of the theater? Of course, I will have purchased the tickets before I met my guests.

ASK the gentleman whom you know best if he will take care of the tickets for you, for it will be much easier and convenient for him to do this than for you to do it. Then he should go first down the aisle, with the usher, and see that the correct places are found by the usher. You and your other guests follow. But in the meantime be sure that you have definitely planned in your own mind just where your guests are to sit, in what order, and indicate to them the order. Do this just as definitely as you would plan your seating arrangements at dinner. There is nothing so confusing to guests as not to know how their hostess wishes to have them seated at a theater party.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Can a married sister act as maid of honor at her sister's wedding? Or is it her place to be matron of honor? I am a young bride of 22 and imagine that an older person would be more suitable for matron of honor. M. L.

WHEN the chief attendant of the bride is married, she is referred to as a matron of honor no matter how young or old she is. When she is unmarried, she is referred to as the maid of honor.

Stag Sues in Vain for a Little Kiss

Marianne -:- Thrilling Romance of World War

He considered this last, then broke into a merry little laugh. "Oh—marry! Why, I am not marry, Monsieur!"

"N-o-o-o-o? Well, I'd be a Chinaman!" murmured Soapy.

"But—but but — In his excitement Yom gave an excellent imitation of a motorboat. "What he means — the was assiduously ignoring the black scowl Stag turned in his direction) "he wants to know—where is their Papa?"

The girl's face was sweet and pensive. "Ah, Monsieur, who knows? One was Belgian, one was French."

Stag interrupted with a murderous glance at Soapy, who had exclaimed: "Excuse me, Miss, I don't think we quite get each other. You mean—these youngsters, petites—they are yours?"

"Of course!" Her arms went defiantly about the children, who were staring with wide eyes. "They have no one else now! Theese little one"—a loving shake of Francois—"'e was found after Verdun. My little Nanette, she was in a cellar at Amiens. And theese little mischief Sylvestre—mon bebe Sylvestre—'e just come!"

Stag's narrowed eyes were slits of steel in his brown face as he turned them on Soapy and Yom who were helplessly shaking.

"Now, maybe"—he spoke through clenched teeth—"you two will be so damned kind as to get out of here!"

"Oh—oh—oh!" Tears were running down Soapy's face. "What evil minds you two birds have got!"

He was groggy with suppressed laughter as he followed Yom unsteadily into the night.

The pantomime was luckily lost upon Marianne, who was concerned with feeling cold little feet. Scolding. Buttoning nightgowns closer around the throat.

"Such bad little ones! An hour ago you should have been in bed! If you get cold, I will give you some very nasty medicine to take for your disobedience. And little Sylvestre—that little bebe. Ah, Nanette, shame on you, to make him disobey so. Now," she clapped her hands, "not another word. Off to bed with you! Kiss me good-night and RUN!"

"Good night, Marianne!"

"Good-night, Marianne," meekly from Francois.

Down the line she went, kissing, scolding them lovingly. She turned from baby Sylvestre and gave a little cry of alarm.

"Ah, but I do not intend to kiss all the orphans in France."

"But I'd appreciate it so. You've no idea how long it's been since I was kissed good night."

"I do not think that so hard [illegible] a young man suffers from lack of kisses—even in France." Something disturbing about this tall young man smiling down at her with laughing gray eyes. In dismay she felt the hot color beating into her face and she tried to speak lightly. "I save my kisses for my bebes. All I can give you, Mon[illegible] is—Bon [illegible]"

CHAPTER 52

THERE was a long silence as they went through the streets of the little town, and swept smoothly into the country-side where the shadows of afternoon lay over the fields like the hands of peace.

"Well, that's the end of all that trouble," Ann Marie sighed, putting her head back on the soft cushion of the car.

"Yes, and it ought to be the end of all the rest of the trouble you have with your family," Jim answered her, and there was a [illegible] of anger and exasperation in his voice. "You're always doing things for them, don't think I don't know all about it, and just now your brother didn't even have the grace to thank you!"

Well, that was true enough when you stopped to think about it, Ann Marie said to herself.

"Think of yourself for a change," said Jim. "Why don't you? The Howdy trouble is over. The girls are safely married. You won't have to spend half your time looking after them and Neal any more—You'll work and do the things you want to do, and after a while you'll get over your hurt—"

"What do you mean?" asked Ann Marie. "You mean that you think I'm hurt and crushed because Neal didn't marry me?"

With his dark eyes on the ribbon of road ahead of him Jim nodded.

"Oh, but you're wrong," said Ann Marie. "I've found out that I didn't care for him as much as I thought I did. It's true that, in the beginning, I was terribly infatuated with him. But quite a long time ago I began to get over it—without realizing what was happening to me."

She could feel his eyes turning towards her. He had slowed down the car, and it slid to a standstill at the side of the road.

"I think it began that first night when you paid for the ginger ale and all the things that Neal sent me out to buy," she went on. "I think I began comparing you with him right then. You see, he was always wanting me to do [illegible] for him, and you were always [illegible] ing things for me. Taking care of me, treating me like as if I were something precious."

"You are," Jim said so [illegible] that she could scarcely hear [illegible]

Secret of Happy Love

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"I WANT him to be happy. I will be happy too with Jennie. And who shall say she has not found the secret of happy love?"

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes Jennie. "I am a girl of 18 and go dancing twice a week. It was last summer that I met a lovely young fellow.

"He took me out once. Then I learned he had a girl, a steady one. He continued to dance with me, but one day he passed me without asking for a dance. I was deeply hurt.

"The next time I saw him I walked away. He followed me and told me not to run away like that. Because I liked him I gave him the dance he asked for. The following week he passed me again.

"Then I learned his girl friend hates me and told him if he danced with me she would give him up. He does not want to lose her, I know.

"But this girl is unfair. When he is not there she goes home with another fellow. I never told him she goes out with others. My friend says I should tell [illegible] I want him to be happy [illegible] will be happy too. [illegible] Or ought I warn him? [illegible] you. Thank you."

I thank you for your [illegible] wishes, Jennie. And I wish [illegible] happiness in your love affair.

I think you will be happy, for you have found the key. Sincere desire to make others happy and find your happiness in theirs!

You are acting wisely [illegible] do not warn the young man you [illegible] against the girl he goes with "steadily." There may be an understanding between them of which you know nothing. If you cannot speak well of her to him remain silent. That is more sportsman like, and also better sense. If you find fault with her he will only fly to her defense.

Let him work out his own problem. If he decides not to go about with her steadily any longer, you will feel justified in accepting his attentions. Otherwise seek other companionships that will be the best solution for all three of you!

Texas Corporation 5s, [illegible] a week ago, sold more than 4 points above their offering price of 98½. Reading Coal & Iron 6s gained about 2 points, while International Telephone 4½s, recovered an early loss.

Time money was extremely quiet and steady. The unsettled state of the stock market tended to improve sentiment toward bonds, especially the rails, and as a result further strength developed in Chesapeake & Ohio refunding 4½s, New York Ontario & Western 4s, Pennsylvania Gold 5s, St. Louis San Francisco 4s and 4½s, Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville General 5s, Erie 5s and New Haven [illegible]. Chicago Union Station 4½s were up 1¼ and Hudson Manhattan Adjustment Income 5s advanced ½.

United States Government Securities and Foreign Obligations developed only unimportant changes.

New offerings of the day included a $32,000,000 issue of Southern Bell Telephone First Mortgage 5s, due in 1941, at 100. Hansa Steamship Line offered $5,000,000 in 10-year [illegible] with stock purchase warrants [illegible]. There was also a State of [illegible] $1,000,000 loan in 4 per cent [illegible] bonds, due January 1, 1935, to yield about 4[illegible] per cent.

The city of New York is soon to offer $60,000,000 in long term securities, the largest piece of municipal financing this year.

An interest rate of not more than 4½ per cent has been fixed for the obligations, which will consist of corporate stock and serial [illegible] and the city sinking fund commission has stipulated that bids must be par or about.

Finance's High Priests Differ in Diagnosis

Public Loses Speculative Appetite; Investing Gaining Favor

—By B. C. Forbes—

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—They surely are disagreeing in their diagnosis of the stock market, these high priests of finance, whose pronouncements are figuring prominently in the newspapers.

B. C. Forbes

* * *

Yesterday's newspapers published a very bullish interview in London with Charles E. Mitchell, head of America's largest bank. A few days ago Arthur Cutten, most prominent operator in Chicago, came out with a highly optimistic statement. Other notables also have been issuing distinctly cheerful assurances.

On the other hand, Craig B. Hazlewood, retiring president of the American Bankers' Association, sounded an alarming warning. Roger Babson, well-known economist, unhesitatingly predicted an old-fashioned, panicky crash. Col. Leonard P. Ayres, Cleveland bank officer, whose utterances are accorded widespread attention, is swinging red lights and talking of "undigested securities" such as led to the stock market slump of 1903.

To add variety Professor Irving Fisher, who keeps close tab on the stock market's fluctuations, takes pretty much of a middle ground. This is also the favorite attitude of Wall Street brokers at the moment—they are "straddling," as they call it.

* * *

Charles E. Mitchell—"Although in some cases speculation has gone too far, the markets generally are now in a healthy condition. Many leading industrial securities are now at levels which would have been considered perfectly sound and conservative even at the standards of ten years ago. The market values have a sound basis in the general prosperity of our country. I cannot see anything such as some people are warning us of, to check continued expansion."

Colonel Leonard P. Ayres—"The Rich Man's Panic of 1903 was explained by J. P. Morgan as being due to the clogging of the markets of that day by an excessive accumulation of undigested securities. Something of the same sort seems to have happened in a milder fashion this fall.

"The decline from the first of September through the first week in October this year has amounted to 14 per cent. In the panic of 1903 the fall decline was 23 per cent; in that of 1907 it amounted to 28 per cent and in the post-war reaction of 1919 it was 16 per cent. In all other years it has been less than this year."

* * *

Certain facts have become obvious. Thus:

Utility leaders dislike the drastic stand taken by the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities against the proposed split-up of Boston Edison Electric's stock, and its severe criticism of the rise in the company's shares.

* * *

It would not be illogical to see certain groups of stocks rise while others fall. The utilities and the investment trusts have had a thrilling advance and may now go into reverse. Rails, oils, sugars, have been relatively quiet and may shortly receive more favorable attention. Not a few "specialties" look ridiculously dear.

Speculators who have had their fingers burned are likely to turn to investments. There promises to be a greater demand for earnings and yield rather than mere expectations. Bonds and preferred stocks should begin to come into their own.

* * *

Yesterday's break will not help to restore confidence throughout the country.

400 P. C. MELON FOR FIRESTONE ON PROGRAM

Offering of $40,000,000 Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. 6 per cent cumulative preferred, Series A, with stock purchase warrants at 99 and accrued dividend, forms part of financing program including sale of a substantial amount of common and declaration and payment of a 400 per cent stock dividend.

Proceeds of preferred will be applied to retirement of 6 per cent cumulative preferred and 7 per cent cumulative preferred now outstanding; retirement of 10-year 5 per cent bonds of Firestone Park Land Co., and reimbursement for expenditures from working capital for expansion of production and sales facilities and further expansion of such facilities.

Warrants issued with preferred are non-transferable prior to September 1 next, and entitle holders to purchase one share of common, as it will be constituted after the common stock dividend, for each share of preferred, at $55 a share on or before January 1, 1932; $65 the next year; $80 the following year, and $100 thereafter until January 1, 1935.

On completion of financing, capitalization will comprise funded debt and preferred of subsidiaries totaling $22,067,900; present preferred of $100 par, and $22,500,000 $10 par common.

Expansion plans call for stepping up capacity of tire plants from 65,000 tires a day to 80,000 in 1930.

The company plans to continue development of its One-Stop Master Service Stores, providing complete service facilities.

Consolidated net of Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. and subsidiaries in United States for 10 months ended August 31, 1929, was $6,016,327, not including any return on approximately $42,000,000 new money provided by present financing, but after depreciation, Liberia development expenditures, federal taxes, etc. For fiscal year ended October 31, 1928, net was $7,072,014.

COPPER RANGE HAS GOOD YEAR

Copper Range Company has been doing exceptionally well at its three properties this year—the wholly-owned Baltic and Trimountain and the 50 per cent-owned Champion Copper Company. Combined production of the three properties has been running at above 2,000,000 pounds a month. In 1928 output was 24,254,132 pounds; this year bids fair to exceed 1928 by a good margin.

Taking only one-half of Champion's production and the entire output of the other two properties, 1928 operations applicable to Copper Range totalled 14,472,365 pounds, produced at a cost of about 12½ cents per pound before depreciation and depletion. It was sold at an average of 15.01 cents per pound. This year's output will unquestionably be larger than in 1928 and costs will be somewhat lower. In addition the average selling price thus far in 1929 has been 3 cents a pound higher than for the entire 12 months of 1928.

If this year it sells its entire production, Copper Range Co. will, of course, show a substantial increase over the $727,688 profit before depreciation and depletion in 1928. Current earnings have been running at the annual rate of better than $1,000,000 or $2.50 a share on the 394,755 shares.

Another contribution this year will come from the high rates the company has obtained from funds it has been loaning in the call money market.

Champion Copper Co., which is owned jointly by Copper Range Co. and St. Mary's Mineral Land Co., has been proceeding with its drilling along the Atlantic bed, in the area conveyed to it by Copper Range Co. and St. Mary's Mineral Land Co. Some copper values have been found and the drilling program will be continued for a distance of four miles, two and one-half miles have already been covered.

Wall Street Gossip

ALPHA Portland Cement Co. reports for 12 months ended Sept. 30 net income of $1,989,345 after depreciation, federal taxes, etc.

INTERSTATE Department Stores declared regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on preferred, payable Nov. 1.

VACUUM Oil Co. has purchased 25 steel tanks and 1,300,000 barrels of Burbank oil from Phillips Petroleum Co.

TREAS. FREDERIC C. DUMAINE of Amoskeag goes to Manchester next Thursday to discuss proposed changes in the plan for employe representation.

New Building Total for Week Displays Large Gain

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—An increased rate of operations in industrial and commercial building raised the money value of contracts let in heavy construction and engineering projects in the United States in the past week, Engineering News-Record reported today. The week's total, $60,748,000, compares with $47,617,000 in the preceding week and $91,995,000 in the same week last year.

UTILITIES ON BIG CURB ARE LOWERED

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—Heavy [illegible] again cropped out on the Curb Exchange today, as the utility stocks, the dominant group in this market, continued down hill with renewed velocity.

The overnight announcement of another [illegible] practically wiping out the decline of the previous week, and carrying the total [illegible] to its [illegible] level, started a stream of selling.

Such issues as Electric Bond & Share, Central States Electric, American and Foreign Power warrants, and Northern States Power "A" dropped nearly five to 10 points, while Allied Power, Electric Investors, Standard Power & Light, United Light & Power "A" and others lost two or three points and more.

Several were carried to new lows for the movement. Commonwealth Edison, a high-priced issue, was strong spot, rallying more than 10 points.

Cosden Oil was again a strong feature, selling up several points more into new high territory. Irregularity cropped out even in the oils, however, which have shown strong resistance to the recent selling. Gulf more than lost yesterday's sharp gain. Standard of Kansas was again in demand, selling up more than a point to new high ground. Cities Service held barely steady.

The new Chesapeake and Ohio stock, based on the proposed 4-for-1 splitup, was in good demand, selling a little higher.

Crocker Wheeler new and General Theatres Equipment were among several of the more active industrials to sag a couple of points or more. Tubize was again under pressure. Allied Aviation sagged to a new low. Firestone Tire slipped back more than 10 points.

IMPROVEMENT IN OIL NOTED

President William G. Skelly of Skelly Oil Co. states that distinct improvement has taken place in general oil conditions recently as a result of oil conservation steps and other constructive factors.

"Feature of the recent proposal for curtailment of oil production in Oklahoma to 660,000 barrels a day for the remainder of this year, which has now gone into effect," Mr. Skelly declared, "was the fact that it was result of a unanimous voluntary agreement among operators.

"Steps towards conservation also have been taken in Texas and Kansas pools. In California the closing in of the Kettleman Hills area was a constructive measure and while difficulties have been encountered in enforcement of California gas conservation the law will become actually effective within 30 to 60 days, which should bring material improvement in that area.

"All these developments indicate a better appreciation within the industry of the importance of conserving oil. It is being realized that it is better to preserve oil in the natural underground reservoir than to build unnecessary storage above ground, requiring a costly investment with attendant loss from evaporation and deterioration of the oil."

Waggoner Estate Goes to Standard

Negotiations have been concluded for sale of oil and ranch properties of W. T. Waggoner estate, centering in Wilbarger and Wichita counties, Texas, to Dixie Oil Co., subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana. The estate owned in fee 525,000 acres of partially developed land in a solid block, with about 20,000 barrels daily gross production and 10,000 barrels daily net. Price is estimated at around $50,000,000.

First National Is After New Chain

First National Stores is completing negotiations for acquisition of the Nicholson-Thackeray Co., operating a chain of grocery stores in Rhode Island. Company was incorporated in 1912 to succeed partnership formed in 1875 and is one of the oldest chain store organizations in New England.

The Nicholson-Thackeray chain will add 120 stores to the First National Stores system, giving the latter some 2500 stores. It will add about $3,000,000 to the First National volume which is now running well in excess of $100,000,000.

Payment will be made largely in stock to supplement a small cash consideration.

The Nicholson factory at Pawtucket is strategically located and may be utilized as the base of further manufacturing and warehousing development to take care of the growing southerly New England business.

Polymet Mfg. Co's Net Is Sharply Up

Polymet Manufacturing Corp. reports for September net income of $114,107 after charges and federal taxes, against $19,226 in September, 1928.

"Market Closed" to Be Flashed Over Stock Tickers

Commencing October 21, operation of the New York Stock Exchange stock ticker will be suspended one-half minute before the close of the market, and on the last stroke of the gong indicating the exchange has closed the phrase "Market Closed" will be printed on the stock ticker tape. Thereafter the printing of quotations will be resumed. This has no bearing on the lateness of the tape or time at which transactions then being printed actually occurred.

DRUG MERGER PART OF WAR ON DISEASE

An offering of preference stock of Sharp & Dohme, Inc., in connection with the acquisition of the business and assets of H. K. Mulford Co. will be made in the near future by a banking group to include Chas. D. Barney & Co., Alex. Brown & Sons of Baltimore and Brown Brothers & Co. The preferred stock is listed on the New York Stock Exchange and application will be made to list the common shares.

The merger follows the recent purchase of an interest in Sharp & Dohme, Inc., by Alex. Brown & Sons, Chas. D. Barney & Co. and Brown Brothers & Co. Sharp & Dohme, Inc., whose business was established [illegible] years ago, manufacture and market about [illegible] standard drugs and medicines. H. K. Mulford Co. is the pioneer and largest producer of serums and vaccines.

An extensive program of expansion has been planned, an important factor in which will be the chief Sharp & Dohme product, a general antiseptic whose base, hexylresorcinol, is 75 times as powerful as carbolic acid but entirely harmless and which has come into almost universal use in hospitals and wide popular use.

According to Dr. A. R. Dohme, chemical adviser and a director of the company and himself a distinguished chemist, this antiseptic, developed in clinical work at Johns Hopkins University, is a potential product for fighting all bacteriological diseases.

Starting with highly efficient pharmaceutical and biological units, other chemical and medical factors will be added to the present merger to form a complete organization with ample capital and every modern facility to limit and combat disease.

Manufacturing plants of the merged companies include model biological laboratories at Glenolden and Ridgway, near Philadelphia, and pharmaceutical laboratories in Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Branch establishments are maintained in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Atlanta, St. Louis, New Orleans, Kansas City, Dallas and San Francisco. A. Homer Smith, president of the consolidated companies, was in charge of drug administration during the war.

Directors include Thomas Newhall, of Drexel & Co.; Chas. D. Hickok, of Brown Brothers & Co.; Edwin A. Fish, of Chas. D. Barney & Co.; R. H. Corey, of Lamont, Corliss & Co.; B. H. Griswold, Jr., and Thomas Hild, of Alex. Brown & Sons; C. N. Lauer, of United Gas Improvement Co., and Ernest Stauffen, Jr., vice-president of the New York Trust Co.

COTTON PRICES RULE STEADY

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—The cotton market opened steady today at unchanged prices to a decline of 7 points. Relatively steady Liverpool cables appeared to be just about offset by reports of continued good weather in the South and the circulation of a few notices seemed to bring out some October liquidation.

Southern selling was less active than recently, however, and the early offerings were well enough absorbed by covering and trade buying to give the market a generally steady tone. October was 7 points net lower, while other months showed net advances of 4 to 6 points.

Liverpool cables reported that Bombay buying and trade calling had absorbed hedging and scattered liquidation in that market.

EVENING AMERICAN FINANCIAL REVIEW

WEATHER GOOD FOR BUSINESS IN BOSTON

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston: The weather has been favorable for almost all lines of business, though not as cold as manufacturers and distributors of heavyweight clothing wish. In general, retail trade has been moderate, but, with a few exceptions, the wholesale trade compares favorably with last year's.

Although the tone of the wool market seems to be improving, business during the past week has been quite small. Stocks in the hands of manufacturers are decreasing and it is expected that they will soon need replenishing. In the meantime the market continues weak.

SPINNERS ARE BUSY

Spinners are busy on knitting yarns and have orders ahead at present for more than the usual amount at this season. Weaving yarns are slow. Prices are steady. Recent openings of woolen goods for spring have been at slightly lower prices and are being well received by the trade.

The demand for cotton cloth has been well sustained and orders on hand amount to more than usual at this time of the year. The mills are seeking to secure their supply of raw cotton well into the middle of next year. Increased purchasing of cotton yarns is reported, but prices show little change.

Contracts for new building and engineering in the New England States for September amounted to $34,297,700, which was a decrease of 52 per cent from the September, 1928, figures. Contemplated work for September shows a decrease of 9 per cent. Contracts awarded in New England for the week amounted to $8,490,500, (a new high record for the week).

CHEMICALS ACTIVE

New England building lumber is coming from mills which keep the market well supplied, and prices continue steady. Some fair-sized brick orders have been received this week, but prices are weak.

Other building materials are slow. Hardwoods for manufacturing purposes continue in good demand, though for building purposes the call is small.

Chemicals are active, with quotations steady. Dyestuffs are steady and there is a slight prospect for improvement in tanning materials. The hide market is weaker. Shipments of shoes at Brockton for September showed a slight increase over those of last September, but in the principal shoe centers there has been a slackening in production since the first of the month.

Leather is seasonably slower and the upward trend of the market has been halted. Tanners are operating on a somewhat larger scale than at this time last year. Imports at Boston for September were valued at $20,673,000, as against $17,692,000 for September, 1928.

Woodruff Elected as Rich Director

Robert W. Woodruff, president of the Coca Cola Co., also the White Motor Co., has been elected a director of Rich's, Inc., a large Atlanta, Ga., department store.

Directors have declared an initial quarterly dividend on the common stock of 30 cents a share, payable November 15 to stock of record November 1.

Sales are running at the annual rate of approximately $7,500,000. Business was incorporated April 1, and for the first six months of operation profits showed an increase of almost 35 per cent over the corresponding period of last year.

September Sales of Gen. Motors Given

During the month of September General Motors dealers delivered to consumers 145,171 cars, according to an announcement by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president. This compares with 148,784 for the corresponding month a year ago. Sales by General Motors' manufacturing divisions to dealers amounted to 146,183 cars, as compared with 167,460 for the corresponding month last year.

Bohn Aluminum's Net Is Increased

Bohn Aluminum & Brass Co. net for nine months of $2,474,906 is equal to $7.03 a share on 352,198 shares, against $2,472,087 or $7.06 on 350,000 shares in 1928 period. Sales totaled $29,000,818, against $25,593,471.

September quarter net was $693,327 or $1.97 on 352,198 shares, against $827,998 or $2.37 on 350,000 shares in third quarter of 1928.

Peoples Gas Light Income Is Larger

Peoples Gas Light & Coke Co. reports for quarters ended September 30 net income of $1,349,969 after charges and taxes, against $1,268,551, in the same quarter of 1928. For 12 months ended September 30 net income was $6,611,351, against $6,125,703 in the preceding 12 months.

BENJAMIN B. MORRIS, owner of 165 shares of Interstate Iron & Steel Co. stock, has filed petition in Chicago asking an injunction to restrain merger with Central Alloy Steel Corp.

IT IS understood American Radiator & Standard Sanitary Co. is negotiating for acquisition of C. F. Churchill Co. of Holyoke.

HOLIDAY TRADE SEEN LIKELY TO SET RECORD

Christmas shopping in 1929 is likely to eclipse all precedents if retail trade continues to show the satisfactory seasonal expansion at present reflected in the activity of chain stores and mail order houses, it is stated by Gano P. Wright, president of The Business Economic Digest, in the current issue of that publication.

BUSINESS BETTER

"Business in general is operating on a much higher plane than existed a year ago at this time even though the conditions prevailing at that time were decidedly good," says Mr. Wright. "Various authorities point to the tendency on the part of the layman to expect the usual seasonal increase over the summer's high volume of activity. Inasmuch as the comparison is made with an abnormally high level, the current autumn's business tends to appear less impressive than it actually is.

"In the steel industry, companies serving the railroads currently are doing better than those without business from this source. Independents relying more largely on the automobile trade for example are running at only 75 to 80 per cent of capacity. While some irregularity in the rate of activity in the steel industry is believed likely during the near future, it is expected that the industry will have a brisk revival at an early date.

"Authoritative opinion is nearly unanimous regarding the outlook for continued expansion of business and earnings among utilities, particularly gas and electric concerns. It is pointed out that a very large expansion is under way in the utilization of natural gas resources, which should pave the way for cheaper fuel for industry as well as in the home.

DEMAND ON UPGRADE

"The demand for electrical equipment is generally conceded to be on the upgrade, notwithstanding the high rate of activity that has prevailed in this line for some time.

"Money conditions have recently eased considerably, and it seems reasonable to expect some additional lowering of interest rates in view of the fact that the seasonal peak in the demand for credit has passed. Many good corporate reports are in prospect; railroad earnings are decidedly favorable; revenue freight traffic is at a record level; inventories, with a few exceptions, are normal.

"Many favorable factors of a nature to affect investment sentiment came to the front last week. Two railroads placed orders for more than 5000 cars. There was a decided upward trend in exports. Of great significance is the fact that Sterling Exchange was at a premium for the first time since July of last year; a better gold position was attained by the Bank of England, and a decline was registered in the rates for both call and time loans."

Hudson Profits in 9 Months Larger

Hudson Motor Car Co. reports for first nine months of 1929 net profit of $13,413,165 after charges and federal taxes, against $12,337,953 in same period of 1928. This is equal to $8.42 a share on the 1,596,660 shares, against $7.72 a share in the first nine months last year.

Third quarter net profit was $2,821,653 after charges and federal taxes, equal to $1.77 a share, against $6,053,729, or $3.79 a share in the preceding quarter, and $3,121,632, or $1.95 a share, in September quarter of 1928.

Bank Clearings of Week Are Greater

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—Bradstreet's weekly compilation of bank clearings shows an aggregate of $14,511,880,000, a gain of 20.3 per cent over last year. Outside of New York there was an increase of 0.3 per cent.

GUARDIAN Investment Trust declared regular quarterly dividend of 1 per cent payable in stock, on its common shares, payable November 1.

LISTING GIVES FIRST NEWS

New York Stock Exchange listing notice of Commercial Solvents Corp., filed in connection with the authorization of the increased stock resulting from the split-up of 10 for 1, and the proposed acquisition of Commercial Pigments Corp., furnishes the first official news on the latter company. It was organized in 1927 to manufacture titanium oxide, a white pigment used chiefly in the manufacture of paints, lacquers and other products.

At organization, Commercial Pigments acquired the United States patents for the Blumenfeld process, subject to royalty payment, and some $1,250,000 in cash, for which it issued 27,000 shares of Class A stock, 38,000 shares of Class B stock, and warrants exchangeable, with the 27,000 shares of A stock or cash, for 54,000 shares of Class B stock.

Commercial Pigments Corp. operates a manufacturing plant in Baltimore. It has also acquired a substantial interest in Travancore Minerals Co., Ltd., British corporation owning extensive concessions for mining of ilmenite, an iron titanium ore, which is the chief material for the production of titanium oxide. Pigments has also valuable patents for manufacture of titanium lithophone, of which titanium oxide is a part.

For August, net profit of Commercial Pigments was $1539, and for the eight months ended August 31, there was a net loss of $36,603. Working capital as of August 31 totaled $199,986. In addition to investments totaling $74,918 and patents carried at $100,830, fixed assets were $650,615.

Commercial Solvents has voted to issue 10 shares of its new stock for nine shares of Class B stock of Commercial Pigments. It is believed that as a part of the offer practically all of the Commercial Pigments stock will be converted into Class B shares.

Anglo-American Accord Is Proper Substitute for World Court Follies

THE VOICE OF SWANSON—THE PROMPTING OF ROOT

Copyright, 1929.

ROOT
SENATOR SWANSON
IT IS ALRIGHT FOR THE UNITED STATES TO JOIN THE WORLD COURT UNDER THE ROOT-HURST SCHEME—
WHY IN 1926 YOU URGED OUR UNCONDITIONAL ENTRY !!
THEN YOU SWITCHED AND INSISTED ON RESERVATION NUMBER V !!
NOW, YOU SWITCH AGAIN !!! WHO'S PROMPTING YOU ????
TOPPING, OLD CHAP!
SIR CECIL HURST
WINSOR McCAY

Q.—Didn't I read that Senator Swanson, of Virginia, says that it is all right for us to join the World Court of the League of Nations under the Root-Hurst scheme?

A.—Yes.

Q.—That's a switch for Swanson, isn't it?

A.—Yes, but he has switched before.

Q.—When?

A.—Back in 1926, when he was in charge of putting the World Court through the Senate. At first he urged our unconditional entry.

Q.—Then what?

A.—Then he suddenly insisted on tacking Reservation Five on to the resolution to enter the court, and the League members refused to accept us with that reservation.

Q.—What made him think of Reservation Five?

A.—John Bassett Moore, a patriotic American, who had been serving as invited judge on the World Court. Judge Moore came over and warned the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs of the peril to this country in the World Court's power to render "advisory opinions" on demand of the council of the League of Nations.

Q.—Then what did Senator Swanson do?

A.—He provided Reservation Five. It announced that without our consent the court could not consider any subject in which we claimed an interest.

Q.—Well, Judge Moore should know that sounds sensible. Why has Swanson switched now?

A.—Somebody told him to: Elihu Root. Mr. Root went to Geneva last Spring and brought back Sir Cecil Hurst's substitute for Reservation Five.

Q.—What protection does the Root-Hurst plan give us?

A.—It allows us to protest the giving of an advisory opinion on an offensive subject, like war debts or American tariff. Then if the court still proceeds, our remedy is to withdraw.

Q.—But WOULD we ever withdraw from a court we solemnly joined, just because we did not like a subject it considered?

A.—The pro-Leaguers count on us never getting out once we are in. Edwin James, of the New York Times, cabled from Geneva on March 20, 1929:

"If we did object and the council took a decision, by a majority vote, to resort to the court anyhow, we would have our choice of accepting our defeat or quitting the court.

"It should be quite obvious that it would be difficult to take such a course. It would require an immense amount of explaining to satisfy world opinion of our proper reason for not being willing to let Mr. Hughes (present American invited judge on the World Court) and his colleagues rule on a case in which we were interested. It would give a very questionable interpretation of how we wished the Kellogg pact to work.

"However, it is hoped by the League leaders that matters would never come to such a pass and that the special consideration America asks for would, in practice, become a dead letter."

Q.—Then the Root-Hurst-Swanson plan is practically to hand over every American interest for a foreign court to pass on, we having formally abandoned our original claim for effective protest or redress?

A.—That's about it.

Q.—And how many foreign judges will there be on that court, and how many Americans?

A.—The score was 11-1 under the original court statute, which has been amended, and now it is 14-1.

Q.—I suppose Ramsay MacDonald's visit is the occasion for this new effort to whoop us into the World Court as an ante-room to the League?

A.—There never was a more inappropriate time for such activity.

Q.—Why?

A.—An Anglo-American understanding appeals to the United States as a SUBSTITUTE for the whole League system of European entanglements.

Q.—Well, is there any hope regarding Swanson?

A.—He's switched twice. Maybe somebody else will see him and he'll switch again.

Brown's New President

Hard to Find HIS College, of 1888, in the University of Today

SIXTY-THREE university or college presidents may be seen walking down College Hill in Providence this afternoon, in such an academic procession as is seldom witnessed.

They will be on their way to the First Baptist Meeting House, and the formal inauguration of Brown University's TENTH president.

The Reverend Clarence Augustus Barbour, who comes to his new office with a record as educator, administrator and public speaker, is a man of dynamic personality, thoroughly equipped for his post. As he takes up the work laid down by William H. P. Faunce, we can think of no more fitting words with which to present him than those of a farewell tribute from Colgate-Rochester Divinity School:

> "Clarence A. Barbour—son of New England and of Brown University, alumnus of Rochester Theological Seminary, citizen of Rochester for four decades, cultured gentleman and Christian, charming after-dinner speaker and conversationalist, popular speaker at preparatory schools, colleges and universities, rare friend, denominational and interdenominational leader, forceful preacher and loved pastor, earnest teacher, gifted lecturer and author of many articles and volumes, lover of hymns, devoted trustee of the Rochester Theological Seminary for many years, its honored President for 14 years, President of the Colgate-Rochester Divinity School, President-elect of Brown University—we salute you."

The Brown from which Dr. Barbour was graduated, forty-one years ago, was little like the Brown we know, today. In the thirty years of the Faunce presidency, indeed, the faculty was increased from 90 to more than 180 members and the student body from 850 to more than 2000.

Commencement exercises of the class of 1888, President Barbour's class, were held in the same Meeting House which is the scene of today's inauguration. President Barbour will recall that earlier march down the Hill.

A native of Hartford, his return to New England is a coming home. Mrs. Barbour, pianist, composer, author and poet, was a Providence girl. New England is one in its good wishes, for them and for the University.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

We would like to know whether this is the Work or the Whitehead system.

Seems that he started with a bid of one diamond. She showed her strong white fangs in a wifely smile and said:

That bid had a sinister meaning, but husbands are people with such low brows that they get brain fever in their Adam's apples.

When he said: "Two diamonds, honey," he wasn't talking to the [illegible]

Long experience in gymnasium work has told us that no matter how far you lift a dumbbell into the air it is still a dumbbell.

She was right. Her bid had taken him out of a minor world and put him with the major angels.

No jury would convict her of bad bidding. We forgot to mention that during all this bidding, North and South were passing.

All bridge games consist of North, South, East and West. Bridge is Mah Jong without the politeness.

The first time around, North and South passed the hand. The second time around, they passed a police station.

She has if he makes bids like that. Her only crime was in shooting too hastily and blasting herself out of some very enjoyable alimony.

Tomorrow's bridge lesson will deal with the famous perfect hand consisting of 12 spades and a coroner's certificate.

H. G. Wells Writes on
"The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

5. The Subjective Side of Life.

ONE characteristic of life we have not yet noted is feeling. We react to external stimulus and we not only react but feel. We are conscious and we have every reason to suppose that a great proportion at least of the living creatures about us are conscious, too.

H. G. Wells

When we see an oyster close its shell at the jabbing of a stick, or a lobster search with its feet and pincers for a fragment of food, it seems natural to assume that these creatures also are feeling, after a fashion in which we feel when we recoil from disagreeable or respond to agreeable sensations.

We seem to detect shrinking and appetite even in the microscopic amoeba, and Sir Jagadis Chandler Bose, by a system of ingenious measurements, shows how even plants appear to be elated or depressed by the application of favorable or unfavorable substances, how they will seem to shudder at this or writhe at that in a fashion suggestive of feeling.

But even a wire spring can be made to shudder at a touch. For all we know there may be gladness in dancing waves and a real freshness in the sunrise itself.

So far as our knowledge goes all feeling, all consciousness, requires concurrent material changes.

The idea of feeling in inorganic material processes is an almost mathematical abstraction.

6. A Preliminary View of Living Forms

Let us now consider how life in general as an external phenomenon presents itself to an ordinary intelligent human being who has had no special instruction in biology. In response to the question, what were the chief sorts of life, such a person would probably answer, plants and animals.

Our race has built its mind, its fears, panics, fables and beliefs on fur and feather and fin, and it is hard to think of a whole world of animated existence without them.

Aristotle we may take as standing in this matter on the dividing line between the unsystematic intelligent person and the systematic inquirer. He was one of the earliest men to become systematic.

The former he subdivided into (1) Mammals (beasts who bring forth their young alive into which class he put men; (2) Birds; (3) Four-footed or creeping things (reptiles and amphibia) which lay eggs; and (4) fishes.

The animals without red blood he referred to (1) a soft-bodied group, in which he put the octopus and squid; (2) a "soft-shelled" division of lobsters, crabs, shrimps, and such like, with jointed bodies and limbs; (3) insects, with which he included spiders and scorpions; (4) creatures with hard protective outer shells like the snail, murex, oyster, and sea urchins; and (5) zoophytes or plant-animals like sponges and sea-anemones. Later we shall give a contemporary classification which has replaced this preliminary survey of living forms.

What we find as we study the history of animal classification down to the present day is a very slight variation of the original classification of the more familiar animals and a steady increase of classes and distinctions among odd and less familiar forms. The naturalist kept opening up new departments with a sort of reluctance, as odd, intractable, unclassifiable riddles were forced upon his attention. Always until quite recent times in every classification there would be a kind of ragbag class, "Vermes," "Radiata," or "Zoophyta," into which all the residue of "puzzlers" would be thrust.

The systematic botanist kept a similar dump. He made a lovely classification of flowering plants, he never tired of arranging them, and then hurled all the awkward cases together into a division of "Cryptogams" which had nothing in common except that they had no flowers to be dried and put neatly between sheets of blotting paper.

It is among these queer, out-of-the-way, low-caste flowers and plants, as we shall see, that some of the most interesting and illuminating work of modern times has been done.

To Be Continued Tomorrow

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

A MAN falls in love with a woman not for what he sees in her, but for all those glamorous and mysterious qualities he thinks she is hiding from him.

From his sudden and direct methods, you'd fancy that the average modern lover had gotten all his ideas about the "approach" to love, from his practice in tackling a football dummy.

The old-fashioned man used to boast that he was only as old as he FELT; but the most extraordinary phenomenon of today is the youth of 20, who fears that by thirty his beauty shall have faded and he may lose all his charm for women.

Homely men are usually fascinating. When Nature gives a man a lot of beauty, she somehow hates to spoil it all by giving him a lot of brains and backbone.

The average husband is always either too restless to keep still and stay at home evenings, or too tired to keep AWAKE and be sociable.

Plenty of limelight around a woman will dazzle most men into thinking themselves in love with her, until the curtain goes down on her popularity, and they see her in the cold, north light of reality.

The usual "reward" a woman gets for being ready on time is to be asked to put the studs in her husband's shirts, find his muffler, hunt for the tickets, and get the car out. Punctuality is one of those virtues which is its OWN reward.

When a man keeps looking at his watch, dear heart, it is usually a sign that he has either a brand new watch—or a brand new INTEREST.

No man was ever such a total "wreck," that SOME woman didn't think he was worth salvaging.

Once-Overs

MOTHERS, are you requiring your daughters to assist you at home?

Or do you follow the usual plan of mothers, and permit your girls to have a good time while you attend to all the work?

Girls should have certain duties at home for which they are held responsible, and their good times should depend upon whether they attend to these duties.

They are young and work will not hurt them.

You think you are kind to spare your daughters by allowing them to avoid housework, but you are not.

You are encouraging them to be lazy and not giving them opportunities to gain information they should possess.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. M'INTYRE

New York, Oct. 18—Thoughts while strolling: Pert girls who drive stunty roadsters. And stop in traffic to light cigarettes. The human oddity in a Tyrolean hat who parades around wearing a riding habit. Mrs. Enrico Caruso in deep purple. Rarely see cut glass any more. Lambert, the Listerine man.

Walter Wanger's wild shirts from London. Sound pictures! What became of the game of authors? And picket hammocks? A pastry named Ganna Walska. Suppressed mustaches. Haven't seen an ice-wagon all summer. Alice Foote MacDougall, queen of the tea rooms. Who used to peddle coffee from door to door.

Wild west movies flourish on East 42d street. That "gone look" of people caught in traffic jams. Marilyn Miller's hair is a little reddish. Jack Hobby, who runs the Cocoanut Grove at Palm Beach. And knows everybody. Gene Markey an Evanston, Ill., boy who made good in the city. George [illegible] and what a showman!

Astronomy prices drop—you can now see the moon for a nickel. "Duke" Herrick, the park commissioner. A poetry bookshop run by a gink with a red smock and hair to his shoulders. An old theatre with the Family Circle. Winnie Sheehan's long eyelashes. Those ripe mustache-sucking English colonels.

Pedestrians who idle in front of bank thrift signs dreaming big dreams. The taxi driver who sings operatic airs in a rich tenor. Ike Dorgan, Tad's brother. Broadway cafe sign: "Sunday breakfast from noon until dusk." Those crystal window models electrically lighted.

Fellow with a push cart passing a Rolls cries: "Also a good car." Who remembers when spinach was greens? Harry Thaw still running around loose. Shirts of "Whalen blue." Racing umbrellas with pencils in the handles. Radios have almost vanquished the organ grinders. Frances Williams and Claire Windsor look alike.

A futurist barber shop. Homer Croy's red tie. The old Chinese fortune teller who makes the rounds of the theatre dressing rooms. Frank Huston and his dog. The afternoon hush that comes to fashionable Park avenue.

A young newly married couple from the middle West—Ohio to be specific—landed in Manhattan four years ago with $16. He took a job as shipping clerk while she worked in a manicure parlor. Both studied at night and on Sunday. In all this time they never saw a play, movie or dined at a public restaurant. An early morning walk in Central Park comprised their sole recreation. She is today owner of a flourishing beauty parlor and he is a $10,000 a year secretary to a railroad official. And that's a novel in a paragraph.

Greenwich Village is to have a coffee shop named "Buzzard's Beak" and, of course, smart alecks will ask for carrion.

A restaurant in East 52nd st. attributes a spurt of trade to the innovation of serving each patron with a free dish of home made pickled watermelon rind. It had struggled for some time with little trade until it sponsored this treat. And now turns 'em away.

One of Manhattan's hurricane executives with the wind in his teeth and a brain forming new projects, has not slept more than four hours a night in 15 years and usually awakens at hour intervals for five or ten minutes. He is in superb health and says more sleep makes him sluggish next day. All of which bears out a famed neurologist's contention that insomnia does little damage so long as one does not worry about it.
